Tonight Ulster County will have both a new congressman and a new assemblyman. For the first time in recent political history, none of the candidates seeking the two offices is an incumbent.

The majority of Ulster's 61,366 registered voters are going to the polls to select men to fill the seats being vacated by Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, neither of whom is seeking another term.

Voters took to the polls this morning under threatening skies and some rain. The Ulster County Board of Elections predicted a large turnout in both city and county.

"We've been flooded with calls," a spokesman said. "They're really coming out this year." The polls opened at 6 a.m. and will close tonight at 9.

Unlike Resnick, none of this year's Congressional candidates is from Ulster County. The Republican Hamilton Fish Jr. and Democrat John S. Dyson are both residents of Dutchess County. So is the Conservative candidate G. Gordon Liddy, Poughkeepsie lawyer, who although not seeking election, has his name on the Conservative line of the ballot. Liberal candidate Peter Kane Dufault, poet-professor, hails from Columbia County.

The assembly race, within the county, pits a lawyer, a doctor and a businessman in a contest for the seat being vacated by Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson. Republican H. Clark Bell, Woodstock resident and Kingston attorney is in the running as is Kingston surgeon Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, Democrat and George Majestic, Town of Gardiner supervisor and hardware store owner.

Latest enrollment figures indicate that as in previous years, the GOP has the decided edge in both the county and the 28th congressional district. In Ulster there are 30,003 registered with the Republican Party, 14,006 Democrats, 862 Conservatives and 291 Liberals. Non-enrolled number 16,204.

In the district there are 96,081 Republicans, 50,004 Democrats, 2,570 Conservatives and 1,140 Liberals. Non-enrolled number 46,819.

Altogether Ulster County voters are faced with 11 choices from president to coroner with (Continued on Page 8, Col. 5)

Presidential Candidates Take It Right Down to Wire

WASHINGTON (AP)—A presidential election campaign clouded by war abroad and disorders at home ended today with its outcome in the hands of the most unpredictable American voter in two decades.

A forecast of fair weather for most of the nation held the promise of a voter-turnout exceeding the record 71 million of four years ago.

The three-way presidential contest began with Republican Richard M. Nixon a runaway favorite to complete one of the greatest political comebacks in history and some doubt whether Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey could even finish ahead of independent George C. Wallace.

It ended with Humphrey making such major inroads into Nixon's margin that public opinion pollsters refused to call a winner.

Chances also increased that none of the candidates would get the 270 Electoral College votes needed to win, which would force the final decision into the House of Representatives for the first time since 1825.

War Issue

The divisive issue of the Vietnam war, which led to President Johnson's stepping down and made a bloody battlefield of the city where Democrats nominated a successor, remained paramount to the last.

Nixon, after backing President Johnson to the hilt on the Vietnam bombing halt that lifted Humphrey's last minute hopes, questioned the move in an election eve telecast.

He said he had a "very disturbing report" gleaned from an unnamed Air Force general, that the enemy was moving thousands of tons of supplies into South Vietnam.

"I think President Johnson went into the bombing halt with good intentions," Nixon said. But, he added, in what appeared to be a shift in his stance, Johnson had relied on a team of "tired" men for advice.

Humphrey branded the Nixon charge "totally irresponsible," and accused the Republican of trying to "frighten the American people."

Johnson announced last Thursday night he was ordering an end to all bombardment of North Vietnam and said there had been a glimmer of progress in the Paris peace negotiations.

The dramatic announcement, although expected for several weeks, was hailed by Humphrey who subsequently showed a three percentage point edge in the final Louis Harris poll released Monday.

HHH Edge

The poll gave Humphrey a 43 to 40 edge over Nixon. This was the first time he has led during the campaign in which he once trailed by eight points in the Harris poll and 15 in the Gallup poll. Gallup's final poll over the weekend had it 42 to 40 for Nixon.

Wallace, the phenomenon that threw pollsters and political experts far off their stride, was given between 12 and 13 per cent of the vote in the final polls.

Despite their last minute predictions, the major pollsters, midful of Harry S. Truman's 1948 upset of Thomas Dewey, said the election was too close to call.

Nixon however, remained confident that he would rack up a popular vote margin of three to five million votes.

John N. Mitchell, Nixon's campaign manager, said this meant that the Republican candidate would get more than enough electoral votes.

Lawrence F. O'Brien, Humphrey's campaign manager, expressed firm belief that "we're going to achieve an electoral majority" in the balloting. This was a little further than Humphrey himself had been willing to go in predictions.

Wallace ended his campaign on a Southern note without repeating his earlier contentions that he would take several states outside the Deep South.

A Wallace aide, however, said the former Alabama governor will carry "all the southeastern states up into Virginia and Maryland and has a chance to carry Pennsylvania."

Besides the three presidential candidates, voters across the country will elect 21 governors, 34 senators and all 435 representatives, as well as hundreds of lesser statewide and local candidates.

Republicans were given a good chance of increasing their current 26 governorships, a slight chance of capturing the House, but little chance of gaining more than two to four seats in the Senate far short of control.

Nixon's backers generated an appeal from former President Dwight D. Eisenhower to the voters not to desert the GOP presidential nominee because of the bombing halt.

"It would be supreme irony," Eisenhower said in a statement under his name, if Nixon lost to Humphrey because the GOP nominee refused to attribute political motives to President Johnson in the decision to suspend bombing.

New Team

Nixon, in his television marathon from Los Angeles Monday night, said if the war isn't ended by Jan. 1 he will bring in a new diplomatic team that will end it.

The diminishing support for Wallace reported in the national opinion polls gave the major candidates hope that the issue could be settled before the electoral college meets Dec. 16.

Resurvey, Search Of Slaying Sector

By WALTER S. CLARK

A resurvey and research of the entire area of East Kingston in the vicinity of the home of Robert D. Gallo, 23-year-old barber, who was mysteriously shot and killed while hunting two weeks ago, will be started soon by State Police BCI officers and uniformed men.

This action will be taken in an effort to recover the shotgun, ammunition belt and wallet of the victim, which disappeared after he was felled with two bullets in the back of the head and one under the arm pit.

It also was learned today that State Police Scuba divers may be called in to search the Hudson River's west shore off East Kingston for the missing items.

Meanwhile, residents of East Kingston were assured Monday night at a meeting called by the East Kingston Rod and Gun Club, that they are "guarded" day and night by patrols of plainclothesmen and uniformed troopers and town constables who tour the area.

It was indicated at last night's meeting attended by upwards of 100 members of the gun club, East Kingston Fire Company and the public, that the wave of fear that prevailed after Gallo's body was found on Oct. 21, the day after he was fatally shot and beaten on the head with an unidentified blunt instrument, has been relieved somewhat by the assurance of the patrols.

Senior BCI Investigator Charles Teelon, who with Senior Investigator Edward Shannon are directing the investigation locally, and Sergeant Richard Dempsey attended the meeting and discussed the death of Gallo with those present. It was explained that there is no immediate reason for fear on the part of residents, although one resident commented "the streets of East Kingston are bare at night."

Residents again were advised to immediately notify any police agency of any information that might aid in the investigation, and that information will be confidentially relayed to the proper authorities.

The reward pledges have reached $1,139, it was reported.

Paris Talks Postponed As Saigon Rejects NLF

PARIS (UPI)—The United States announced today the Vietnam talks scheduled for Wednesday had been postponed indefinitely following Saigon's refusal to sit down with the Viet Cong.

U.S. spokesman William Jordan said "as soon as a date has been decided for the next meeting we will announce it." There was no indication when the substantive talks would begin.

"We continue to consult with the government of the Republic of South Vietnam in this matter and we are hopeful that its delegation to the forthcoming talks will arrange to arrive in the future," Jordan said.

South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu was disclosed today in Saigon to have agreed to Paris meetings before President Johnson announced the bombing halt of North Vietnam last Thursday night.

But Thieu repeated today that he would not send a representative to the Wednesday talks because the Viet Cong was represented as a separate political entity. He left the way open for some future meeting in Paris when he said he "had not yet made a decision."

With Saigon throwing one monkey wrench after another into the negotiating machinery, the United States began secret talks with the North Vietnam delegation today seeking a postponement of the crucial Wednesday session.

Monday's fighting in South Vietnam produced no major battles but it raised to about 350 the VC and North Vietnamese killed in two days. Story Page 26.

The U.S. statement announcing the cancellation was the only reference to the South Vietnamese refusal to attend any conference that includes the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, as an equal partner.

Jordan said, "representatives of the United States and North Vietnam delegations have been meeting to discuss" procedural questions relating to the first meeting of the expanded talks since President Johnson stopped all U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

A North Vietnamese source told them he had agreed at the request of the United States.

The source said Hanoi agreed to "readily" because it did not want to embarrass the United States.

But the source said "Hanoi will make no concessions to help Saigon save its face and come here."

The North Vietnamese added, however, "we are ready for four-cornered talks any time—even tonight—as soon as the Americans also are ready."

Jordan would not elaborate on the secret meetings being held between representatives of North Vietnamese and American delegations.

His statement, however, was the first public and official acknowledgement that behind the scenes talks have taken place between the two sides.

Jordan said that "procedure for the first meeting has not been agreed upon."

Thieu and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky spent an hour with representatives of South Vietnam's militant Catholics who figured heavily in a 6,000 person demonstration in Saigon in favor of Thieu's stand. Well-the-scenes talks with Hanoi informed sources said Thieu diplomats on arranging procedural details for the sessions.

initially to "the United States package deal with Hanoi."

But he said he and U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker were still at odds over American inclusion of the Viet Cong in the talks as a full participant and that he "would have to be assassinated" before he would agree with the present U.S. peace policy.

The sources said Ky told the Catholics there would be "another Dien Bien Phu" because intelligence reports told of an increased Communist buildup and increased infiltration.

Thieu in a nationwide speech said a Viet Cong attack on the Mekong Delta village of My Tho Monday night showed the Communists were not negotiating in good faith and he urged his nation to fight on. But as for entering talks at a later stage he said he had "not yet made a decision."

Informed sources in Paris said the United States was secretly negotiating with North Vietnam to delay the formal opening and continue behind-the-scenes talks with Hanoi diplomats on arranging procedural details for the sessions.

Poor CC Turnout Again

No Saugerties Decision

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

The future of the Saugerties Area Chamber of Commerce seemed no closer to solution today than it has over the past year or so. In spite of attempts by business leaders in that community to inspire renewed interest in the organization and heavy publicity on an important decision-making meeting yesterday afternoon, only eight members attended the luncheon session at the Exchange Hotel in Saugerties.

Nothing Decided

As a result of this poor turnout, nothing was decided in reference to whether the Chamber will continue to function or dissolve.

Chamber president Albert V. Conte, now serving his second term, told The Freeman this morning that in spite of the failure of the meeting and the apathy it reflected, further steps will be taken to revitalize the group. He said plans are already being made to encourage a much larger group to attend a future meeting for the same purpose to which, hopefully, a more representative gathering of merchants, professional and business men and industrial leaders could be persuaded to join in giving suggestions. He added, however, that no date has been set for this general meeting; said the time would be announced after a session of the executive committee.

Specific Solutions Needed

Yesterday's session dissolved into a luncheon meeting primarily when it became evident that no decision could be made by such a small group. Even so, an attempt was made to cull some suggestions from the octet in attendance. The suggestions were not so much specific as they were general, however.

Those present felt it was important to motivate present and potential members to come to a far larger general meeting soon, but exactly how this was to be accomplished was not defined. Another suggestion was that the Chamber attempt to find out what both members and local residents want for the future of the group.

One problem the Saugerties Chamber faces in the immediate future is replacing its long-time secretary. The organization lost its executive secretary, Alfred R. MacMullen, this year when he was forced to resign due to personal commitments after serving in that post for many years. Conte, the current president, is seemingly unresolved about staying in office when his term expires. After two years of trying to overcome the apathy of those who are actually most vitally affected by Chamber activities, he feels he would have to carefully consider further service in his present capacity.

The problem is not so much that the Saugerties Chamber lacks for members. It simply lacks active, hard-working members.

One Famed for Work

Within the past decade, the Chamber was one of the most busily functioning organizations in Ulster County. It initiated many programs and ideas which reaped acclaim for its membership and fostered imitation by other groups elsewhere.

At the height of its success, the Chamber could claim some 100 members. By last year, only 73 persons were paying dues and, this year, membership is down to 64. Even so, 64 could be a good working membership if it was not for the fact that the vast majority of that number simply pay their dues; do not attend meetings or participate in activities.

In the final analysis, hope still remains that the Saugerties Chamber can come back from its lethargy and again serve with forcefulness in its town if some very specific suggestions are forthcoming from the future meeting now being planned.

Two Fires In County

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a large frame building on the property of Kitla's Colonial Hotel and Motel on Route 209 in Ellenville Monday night, and another fire heavily damaged a two-story farmhouse in Marlboro early today.

Wawarsing fire units in command of Chief James Terwilliger were dispatched to the Colonial Hotel at about 11 p. m. yesterday after a passerby discovered flames sweeping through a 60x30-foot structure and summoned firemen to the scene.

Chief Terwilliger said that when the first firemen arrived at the hotel-motel property they found the building heavily involved in flames. Volunteers battled the blaze for about an hour but were unable to save the building used as living quarters for employees.

The volunteers concentrated their attention on the main building and other frame structures on the property near the structure that was involved in the fire. The building was destroyed, and fire officials said the cause had not been determined. There was no one in the structure when the fire erupted.

At 12:20 a. m. Marlboro fire companies were dispatched to the Rapisadi apple farm on Latintown Road, where fire was reported in a large farmhouse. Chief Richard McMullen with the aid of Deputy Chief Cal Cosman directed volunteers as they battled the flames.

The fire burned up through the center of the house, but firemen checked the spread of the flames before they hit the roof. The interior of the house was gutted. The cause was not determined. Tenants residing in the building left without incident. Firemen were back in service at 2:30 a. m. No injuries were reported at either fire.

Shandaken Accident Claims 2nd

Injuries suffered in a one-car accident on Slide Mountain Road in the Town of Shandaken on Sunday afternoon, has claimed the life of a second occupant of the vehicle. Robert Keller, 20, of 21 Jefferson Street, Merrick, L. I., died at 4 p. m. Monday in the Margaretville Memorial Hospital.

The youth's mother, Mrs. Antonia, 42, was fatally injured in the mishap, and died at the Margaretville hospital soon after she was admitted.

Surviving the crash were Mrs. Keller's husband, Samuel, 43, and their son, Henry S. Keller, 21. They had been listed as critical until today when their names were removed from the critical list and the condition of each was reported as fair.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Grennie, who investigated the fatality with Ulster County Coroner Arthur C. Chipp of Kerhonkson, reported the car in which the Keller family was riding northbound on Slide Mountain Road, went out of control, careened off the shoulder and crashed into a large maple tree.

It was not immediately determined who was driving the car at the time of the mishap, but authorities believe it was operated by Henry, who reportedly fell asleep at the steering wheel. The 1961 car was destroyed.

The death of the youth yesterday boosted Ulster County's highway death toll to 44. The toll for 1967 was 43.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans, who have steadily increased their share of the nation's governorships in the last four elections, stand a good chance of widening the 26 to 24 margin they now hold over the Democrats.

Governors will be elected in 21 states. Democrats hold 13 of those seats, Republicans only eight.

Democrats in seven states are losing the usual advantage of having an incumbent governor standing for re-election. Two of the seven are running for the Senate, two are stepping down for personal reasons and three are barred by state law from succeeding themselves.

The lone Republican incumbent not running, Gov. Nils A. Boe of South Dakota, also is in the can't-run-again category.

In 1959-60, at the end of the Eisenhower administration, there were only 14 Republican governors—down from 30 in 1933-54. In the 29 states where there are no races for governor this year, the office is held in 11 by Democrats and in 18 by Republicans.

Several Democratic governors stepping out have national reputations. Harold E. Hughes of Iowa is running for the Senate. John Connally of Texas is going into private law practice after three terms. Philip H. Hoff of Vermont is stepping down for personal reasons after serving three two-year terms.

In New Hampshire, John King is running for the Senate. Roger D. Branigin of Indiana, Dan Moore of North Carolina and Hulett C. Smith can't run again.

States that are electing governors today for four year terms are Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, North Dakota, Utah, Washington and West Virginia. Governors are being elected for two year terms in Arizona, Arkansas, Iowa, Kansas, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Texas, Vermont and Wisconsin.

In Arkansas, Winthrop Rockefeller seeks a second term as the state's first Republican governor since Reconstruction. And in Kansas, Democrat Robert Docking also is running for a second term in a traditionally Republican state where the only Democrat repeating as governor was his father, George Docking.

Republican Gov. Jack Williams of Arizona has as his opponent for a second term the man he ousted in 1966, Democrat Sam Goddard, who charges Williams' tax reforms favor big corporations.

In Delaware, Republican Russell W. Peterson said he would end the "fear and failure" that led Democratic Gov. Charles L. Terry to send National Guardsmen to quell rioting in Wilmington last April.

In Illinois, Democratic Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro and GOP op-

Peterson opposed higher taxes in New Hampshire. Bussiere said he would veto any state income or sales taxes enacted by the GOP-controlled legislature, but Peterson refused to make such a promise.

The bid of Democrat Fabian Chavez to become New Mexico's first Spanish-name governor gave an ethnic tone to his effort to unseat GOP Gov. David F. Cargo.

Republican U.S. Rep. Jim Gardner attacked long-time Democratic control of North Carolina's statehouse in opposing Lt. Gov. Bob Scott.

Republican Robert P. McCamey argued in opposing North Dakota's Democratic Gov. William L. Guy that the state needs a governor of the same party as the GOP-controlled legislature.

Republican Gov. John Chafee of Rhode Island defended his administration against Democrat Frank Lincht.

ponent Richard B. Ogilvie vie over who can best maintain law and order, while both oppose a state income tax.

Hostility to taxes is also a feature of Indiana's Republican campaign between Secretary of State Edgar D. Whitcomb and Democratic Lt. Gov. Robert L. Rock.

The Iowa GOP candidate, Robert D. Ray, charged in his campaign against Democratic State Treasurer Paul Franzenburg, that Democrats were spending the state into the red. Franzenburg denied it.

Democratic Gov. Robert Docking and GOP opponent Rick Harman in Kansas accused each other of favoring higher taxes.

Montana's Democratic candidate, Atty. Gen. Forrest H. Anderson, campaigned against GOP Gov. Tim Babcock's proposed 3 per cent sales tax.

In Missouri, Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes boasted of improving education, attracting new industry and other programs, while Republican Lawrence K. Roos said the state still needs to catch up in those areas.

DIXVILLE OTCH, N.H. (AP) — Dixville Notch, solidly Republican in the past, gave eight votes today to Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey and four to Richard M. Nixon.

The town of Ellsworth in the White Mountains, however, stayed in the Republican camp and its 11 registered voters cast ballots for Nixon.

The two towns were among the first in the nation to count their presidential vote.

In 1960 Nixon collected all eight votes to which Dixville Notch, a town near the Canadian border, was then entitled. The makeup of the population has changed since then, however, with development of a new ski area bringing in some new families.

Further outlook: continued mostly cloudy with a chance of rain or showers late Wednesday night or Thursday.

New Hampshire law permits towns to set their own hours for opening the polls. They may be closed when every registered voter has cast a ballot.

Dixville Notch is in Coos County, one of the nation's bellwether counties. Coos has voted for the winner in every presidential election since 1884.

Town Clerk Norman Greene, his Southern accent standing out against the Yankee twang of his neighbors, gave a party for Dixville Notch's dozen voters. Greene moved to New Hampshire three years ago from Inman, S.C.

For Period Ending 7 a. m. EST Wednesday

Tonight rain is forecast for the Lower Lakes and the Ohio Valley, while rain mixed with snow is expected over the upper and middle Mississippi valley and in portions of the northern Plains region. Showers will occur in the southern Plains. Some snow activity is anticipated for the northern Rockies. Fair to partly cloudy skies will prevail elsewhere in the nation. Cooler weather is in store for the southern Rockies, the Plains, and the upper and mid-Mississippi valley. It will be warmer in the Gulf States. Little change elsewhere.

Expect Plenty of Secret Maneuvers If Electors Can't Pick President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Campaign oratory is likely to give way to behind-the-scenes maneuvering on one or perhaps two levels if today's election fails to produce a clear-cut Electoral College winner.

There has been no agreement among the three presidential candidates about what should be done if one of them fails to get the needed 270 electoral votes.

Republican Richard M. Nixon has challenged Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey to agree in advance to support the popular vote winner if the election goes to the House.

Humphrey said he has always favored direct popular election of the president—which would require a constitutional amendment.

Until one can be passed, he has said he stands behind the constitutional procedure that provides for election by the House if no candidate wins a majority in the Electoral College.

George C. Wallace says the matter will never go to the House but will be settled, if necessary, by the electors themselves who meet and vote Dec.

16 in their respective states.

The maneuvering, that is likely to occur will involve first the Electoral College itself and its 538 members before their December vote. It will take 270 electoral votes—a simple majority—for a presidential candidate to win.

The next target of maneuvering would be the New House of Representatives, which will inherit the task of picking a president if the Electoral College fails to choose the president.

When the public votes tonight, it expresses its presidential preference but actually picks slates of electors in each state.

The slates of candidates for elector have said which presidential nominee they favor. The slate supporting the nominee who wins the most popular votes in each state gets to cast all that state's electoral votes.

If Richard M. Nixon, Hubert H. Humphrey or George C. Wallace wins in states with 270 or more electoral votes, the electoral college proceedings are a formality.

But if there is no immediate apparent majority after the popular voting, the dickering can begin.

In only 16 states and the District of Columbia are the electors actually pledged to follow their state's popular vote.

Wallace's electors have pledged to do what he says. Thus if Wallace told his electors to vote for Nixon or Humphrey, that could create an electoral majority despite the popular vote.

There would be 41 days for bargaining or changes of mind.

Once the electors meet, the outcome presumably would be known immediately although the official ballots are not counted until Jan. 6 at a joint session of Congress. There is no provision for a second Electoral College ballot if no majority is reached on the first one.

However, a leading law expert, Harvard Prof. Paul Freund, said Monday that a 90-year-old law might prevent switching of positions among electors.

He said that the 1878 law places in Congress "the final say whether to honor an electoral vote cast for a candidate other than the candidate of his party."

If the Electoral College deadlocks, the House of Representatives would immediately ballot to pick a president. Each state delegation would get one vote and 26 votes would be required to elect a president.

The fact that one party holds a majority of the 435-member House is no guarantee its seats would be distributed within the states so as to guarantee the 26 votes. Additionally, at least 85 candidates with a good chance of election have said they would vote for the popular vote winner in their district, state or the nation rather than necessarily for their party's nominee.

Paralleling this procedure would be selection of a vice president. If the electoral college could not produce 270 votes for Spiro T. Agnew, Edmund S. Muskie or Curtis E. LeMay, the Senate would have to pick the vice president.

But while the House would ballot among the top three finishers in the electoral college presidential balloting, the Senate would be allowed to select only between the top two in vice presidential voting.

If the House were deadlocked over the presidency at noon, Jan. 20—Inauguration Day—the vice president-elect would become acting president until the deadlock is resolved.

If the Senate also were deadlocked, the speaker of the House would become acting president after resigning as speaker and as a member of Congress. Next to him in succession would be the president pro tem of the Senate.

The House twice has selected the president following electoral college deadlocks.

"I picked Thomas Jefferson in 1801 over Aaron Burr, who was then made vice president."

In 1825, the House elected John Quincy Adams over Andrew Jackson and William Crawford, although Jackson led in both the popular vote and in the Electoral College balloting.

Demolition Hits Again; in Hot Water

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — To be called from the bathtub to answer the door is bad enough, but it's worse if you have to go out and keep your home from being knocked down.

Mrs. Rayfield Scroggins says she was taking a bath last Thursday when "I heard that huge crane move in."

She jumped from the tub, put on clothes and went to ask the crane operator what was happening.

"He told me our place was on his list to be demolished," she said. "He also told me he didn't have a lot of time to talk it over since there were about 80 houses in our area on his list for demolition."

The homes are to be leveled for a low-cost housing project. But an authority spokesman admitted later that Mrs. Scroggins' home was one of about 25 owned by persons who have not agreed to sale terms.

She wasn't satisfied when the authority agreed to leave her home alone for now. She complained that no one "even bothered to apologize."

She's a woman with everything to live for. That's why a Pap test is as much a concern to her as her appearance.

So, once a year, out of her busy world of fashion, she sees her doctor for a complete physical check-up—including a Pap test. It's a simple, painless 10-minute test for cancer of the uterus.

She knows that when you have everything to live for, you don't risk it all for the sake of 10 minutes. We wish more women felt that way.

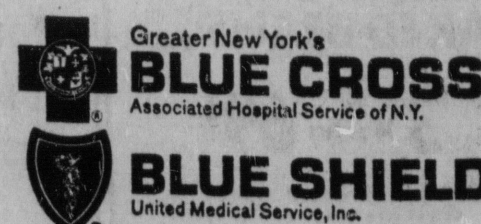

Uterine cancer is the leading cause of cancer deaths among women 20 to 34 years of age. 44,000 women develop it each year, and 14,000 of them die.

And the really tragic part is that if every woman took ten minutes once a year for a Pap test, the inroads of this kind of cancer could virtually be halted.

11,000 Votes Could Be Difference In New York Presidential Contest

By CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The contest for New York's 43 electoral votes went to the voters today with the prospect that it would be the closest major election here in 14 years.

Many election observers expected the margin between Republican Richard M. Nixon and Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey would be the narrowest since Averell Harriman won the governorship in 1954 by 11,000 votes.

In that memorable race, the outcome was in doubt until a re-canvas confirmed that Harriman had beaten Republican Irving L. Ives by less than one half of one per cent of the total vote cast.

A spokesman for Gov. Rockefeller said the governor, anticipating a close contest, was prepared to impound the ballots, if necessary.

Breeze for Javits

By contrast, the other big contest this year shaped up as a run-away for U.S. Senator Jacob K. Javits, the liberal Republican seeking a third term against Democrat Paul O'Dwyer and Conservative James L. Buckley.

Most of the voter surveys rated Javits a 2-1 favorite over O'Dwyer, a Vietnam peace candidate trailed closely by Buckley, a brother of columnist William F. Buckley.

About seven million voters were expected to turn out across the state today in generally clear and crisp autumn weather to cast their ballots in the state's 13,581 election districts. Polling hours were 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Besides deciding the presidential and Senate contests, the voters were to elect a full 41-member delegation to Congress, a new State Legislature and a wide variety of local officials.

Little or no change was anticipated in the congressional delegation, in which Democrats hold a wide numerical superiority. Similarly, Democrats were considered able to withstand a strong Republican challenge to their majority control of the State Assembly, while the State Senate remained in GOP hands. Only one major office-holder was certain of re-election. Adrian P. Burke of Manhattan, the senior associate judge of the Court of Appeals, had the endorsement of all major parties for another term on the state's highest court.

Nixon, once rated a heavy favorite in New York, saw his advantage fade during the final weeks of the campaign as the disorganized Democratic organization pulled itself together and mounted a strong closing effort for Humphrey.

Hubie Has Edge

Humphrey was given a narrow lead in the final poll conducted by the New York Daily News, operating the only independent statewide survey of voters. But Republicans discounted this, observing that the News had predicted Gov. Rockefeller's defeat in 1966.

This year's poll also cast Javits as an easy winner over O'Dwyer, who alienated many Democrats by withholding his endorsement of Humphrey until after the Vietnam bombing halt was ordered. Knowledgeable politicians in both parties saw it the same way.

The 1968 ballot was crowded by a variety of minor-party presidential slates, as well as Senate aspirants.

Alabama's Former Gov. George C. Wallace ran on the "Courage Party" tickets, and the political pros conceded him up to 10 per cent of the total vote. Whether he would siphon support mainly from Nixon or Humphrey was a matter of debate.

Rockefeller, spearheading the drive for Nixon, closed the campaign Monday with a cross-state tour in company with Javits, while the senator's two principal rivals also traversed the state in last-ditch appeals to the voters.

Rocky Helps Jake

Rockefeller and Javits flew from Buffalo to Rochester, Syracuse, Utica and Albany, winding up in New York City. O'Dwyer hit Rochester and Albany before closing his campaign with a candle-light parade in New York. Buckley visited Albany, Buffalo and Binghamton.

In Buffalo, Rockefeller declared that "New York could be the swing state in the presidential race," adding that the Democrats must carry New York to win.

Ellenville Village Board:

Charges County Body 'Derelict'

BY CHARLES BERMPOHL

The Ulster County Legislature was put on the firing line at last night's Ellenville Village Board meeting for its alleged stalling on a $2,500,000 flood control project for the Wawarsing population center.

The county's governing body was charged with being "derelict in its duties" for its "repeated ignoring" of efforts to get it to meet with the village and the New York State Conservation Department on the project.

Ellenville Mayor Eugene Glusker told The Freeman that the Legislature "has to cooperate" with the village and the state in order for the project to get off the ground.

According to Glusker, the county owns the Cape Avenue Bridge in Ellenville. The bridge must be razed in order for the project to proceed.

Plans Ready for Bid

"The county passed a resolution last year to the effect that it would participate in the flood control project," said Glusker.

The Ellenville mayor explained that all government bodies involved in the project must meet to finalize plans "which are ready to go to bid." Glusker declared "everyone agreed to attend the meeting except the county."

Wawarsing Legislator Frank Muller said that the agreement to meet is being held up by the Legislature's Bridge and Highway Committee, chaired by Frank L. Miller of District 2 (Towns of Ulster, Kingston, Hurley, and Marletown).

The mayor said that the project has been stalled since September, and he claimed that the lack of action demonstrates that the county government "doesn't think too much of the people of Ellenville."

Reportedly, the cost of razing the bridge rests within the vicinity of $55,000, an amount to be paid by the county.

Glusker suggested the possibility of the village assuming the cost, and then subtracting the amount from the county tax levy.

Other Action

In other action at the regular board meeting, bids were opened for the new police car and the apparent low bidder was Bill Collier Chevrolet of Ellenville.

Collier submitted a bid of $2,499.95 on a four-door sedan. Other bidders were Bird Ford of Kerhonkson with $2,724.81, and Murray Glick Auto of Monticello with $3,055.00 on a new Pontiac.

The Ice Caves Mountain commercial establishment paid the village another $3,000 as partial payment on the use of the village land. Six thousand dollars have been received so far for the year.

It was pointed out that the firm has raised its admission fee to the natural wonder from $1.50 to $1.75 per person.

There was some discussion on the repeated vandalism in the village with a suggestion being made that the police should attempt to pick up some of the young people involved in the alleged acts and take them home to their parents.

Village Attorney James Murray said that in excessive acts of vandalism it was possible for the property owner to bring a civil action against the parent of an offending minor.

The mayor read a letter from Bernard Wainer of the Rondout Valley Publishing Company reported, would be from six to eight inches in height.

He said that a blacktop curb was the most practical solution at the present. The curb, it was reported, would be from six to eight inches in height.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 5, 1968

Why They're in Trouble

When John W. Gardner was Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, his duties required him to visit every major American city. There he learned what is the trouble with the big cities, why they have become breeding grounds of fear and hostility. In a word, he said it is "fragmentation."

"The suburbs were out of touch with the central city," he said. "Business, labor and the universities were three wholly separate worlds—as far apart as worlds can be. City Hall was usually out of touch with the ghetto and often out of touch with the ablest and most influential people in the city. The most ominous rifts, of course, were the rifts involving various minority communities, most commonly the black community."

Gardner found that stresses among the various elements of a community produce a variety of reactions? "Some people respond to trouble affirmatively, redoubling their efforts to act constructively. But others, both black and white, respond to the interplay of violence and counter-violence with deepened anger, fear, hostility, and a desire to strike back."

Unable to use these lessons in the Cabinet, Gardner is now trying to use them in the Urban Coalition of which he is the national head. Healing the rifts among the disparate elements of the urban community is, he has come to believe, the way to solution of the urban problems.

Gardner has been engaged all his adult life in the social problems of the country. He is putting that whole experience into the attempt, through a coalition of business, labor, professionals, religious groups, and minority groups, to find the answers to the violence and misunderstandings. It is a long and difficult road, but one that should pay off with a more closely knit America.

White House Transition

Perhaps nothing emphasizes the democratic process more in this country than the manner of the transfer of power between the Chief Executive of the nation and the new President to take office January 20 next.

Months before that event, Congress had appropriated the sum of $900,000 to cover the costs of the transition. This was the first time that any appropriation had been made for this purpose. In the past, the successful candidate and his party bore the cost, together with the men he had chosen to be part of his administration. It was a sort of initiation fee, wholly unfair for a great and wealthy nation to impose on its President.

It was found that the retiring President also incurred considerable cost upon leaving office, as did the Vice President. So the $900,000 voted by Congress will be divided, $375,000 each to cover the costs of the incoming and outgoing President and $75,000 each to cover the cost of the incoming and outgoing Vice President.

Not to be outdone in consideration by the Congress, for the first time in history an outgoing Administration is preparing elaborate offices in the Executive Office Building with secretaries and equipment to be used by the President-elect and the Vice President-elect. Only recently did representatives of the old Administration brief the new, but with no provision for offices for the new until after the inauguration.

In 1964, Congress approved a presidential transition act to help assure continuity between the election and the inauguration "in the faithful execution of the laws and in the conduct of the affairs of the Federal Government, both domestic and foreign." The act provides funds both for the incoming President and Vice President to move smoothly into office and for the old to wind up their affairs and return to private life.

These provisions are a sign of maturity. All three major candidates have designated teams to represent them. The winner's team will move in the day after the election is determined. They will be hard at work while the President-elect probably takes a well-deserved rest before he takes up the burdens of office.

Mrs. Evelyn J. Whitehorn, a divorced mother of four sons, appeared at the draft board in San Jose, Calif., and announced she had forbidden her 18-year-old son Erik to register for the draft because he is subject to her control until he is 21 and she is willing to take any punishment for his action. Her lawyers warned her he cannot be certain she will not be subject to prosecution, but that did not deter her. The boy did not register.

The month of August was the most destructive of any on the highways. With vacationers on the road, 5,280 died in traffic accidents. That is at a rate of more than 60,000 a year, a horrendous toll that cannot be brushed under the rug as we have been doing for years as the traffic deaths soared. We must find a way to cut this fearful death on the highways. It transcends the damages done by war, crime, and violence that arouse us most.

"Take It Easy, Junior, You Better Apologize!"

David Lawrence Says

Nixon to Have Needed 270 Electoral Votes

WASHINGTON — The time has come to write a final forecast on the outcome of the election, as this correspondent has done in the last 13 presidential contests. Eleven of these predictions turned out to be right. The formula used disregards personalities, campaign oratory, crowds and public-opinion polls, and presents the writer's judgment of the impact of the main issues of the campaign on the voters.

Two sets of issues have always been the deciding factors in analyzing the trend in presidential elections — the emotional and the economic.

The emotional issues this year cover the questions of peace or war, racial conflict, civil disorders and crime. The economic issues relate to "pocketbook" problems, such as the high cost of living and unemployment in different sections of the country.

Broadly speaking, the economic situation in America today is relatively stable and would not itself cause the party in power to be defeated. Wages and employment are at a high figure. Economic conditions, however, are not the same in all sections of the country or even in state. Thus, for instance, farmers find that their costs — for labor, tools, machinery, fuel — as well as interest rates and taxes have gone up in recent years and are rising steadily, while prices of farm products have not kept pace with these increases. Hog prices are the lowest in three years. Corn is selling at the lowest price in nearly 30 years, and wheat prices are the lowest in 20 years.

Over-all net income from the sale of farm products has hardly changed since 1960. Even adding the government payments, the farmer's net income buys far less than it did eight years ago. It can be expected, therefore, that the votes in the farm areas will be largely Republican. This is one of the reasons Nixon is favored to carry so many states in the Midwest and far west.

Usually the big cities are heavily Democratic, and these votes often are enough to overcome the rural majorities of the Republicans. But this time race factors, disorder and crime in the streets, and the busing of children away from neighborhood schools have stirred deep emotions. Real-estate agents and property owners from coast to coast are not happy about the way the government has stepped in to control the sale and rental of private property. All of this has stirred up discontent in the cities and will take away votes from the Democratic presidential nominee and give them either to Wallace or to Nixon.

One of the most important of the emotional issues is the Vietnam war. The halt in the bombing just announced by President Johnson may swing some votes to Humphrey, but it will not be a decisive factor in the election. The fact is that the electorate tends to vote against a party that has plunged the nation into a war.

Thus, six days before the ending of World War I, the Republicans took a majority in both Houses of Congress, which had been controlled by the Democrats. In 1946, in the first national election after World War II, the Republicans obtained a majority in both Houses in the midst of a Democratic administration. In 1952, as the Korean War was approaching its end, the voters were not particularly impressed by efforts of the Truman administration to bring about an armistice—they voted against the Democratic party and in favor of the Republican nominee.

After analyzing the basic issues, this correspondent has come to the conclusion the Richard Nixon will have at least the 270 votes needed for a majority in the Electoral College. He doubtless will get a good many votes beyond that figure, but in the additional states which are leaning toward him, the vote may be very close, especially since there are three candidates in the field.

A majority for Nixon takes into account that Wallace will probably obtain a total of 66 electoral votes from seven states and that Humphrey could get as many as 195 electoral votes, largely in the East.

It is possible, incidentally, for Nixon to win the election without the 43 electoral votes of New York, the 29 votes of Pennsylvania, the 21 votes of Michigan, the 17 votes of New Jersey, and the 14 votes of Massachusetts. He could even lose also the 25 votes of Texas, but with his strength in the West and Middle West and Southwest, he still would have 277 votes—seven above a majority.

NEW YORK (NEA) — The foreign news analyst, like the historian of current affairs, faces the difficult problem of telling history before knowing how it will end. The Vietnamese drama now entering a new phase is a case in point.

The diplomatic negotiations in Paris will be long and arduous. The Communists, as usual, will seek to gain at the conference table the victory that eluded them on the battlefield.

Nevertheless, despite the loud propaganda of Ho Chi Minh's partisans in the United States and elsewhere in the West, it is already clear that North Vietnamese and their Viet Cong allies are negotiating from weakness and not from strength.

Not only North Vietnam but the entire international Communist movement is significantly weaker in 1968 than it was in 1965 when President Johnson decided to escalate the war.

The political convulsions in Red China, Mao Tse-tung's growing conflict with the "revisionists" in Moscow and the Kremlin's escalating troubles in Russia and East Europe were undoubtedly decisive factors in Hanoi's new policy.

Future objective historians may well agree that America's enormous sacrifices were not in vain and that it was President Johnson's commitment in Vietnam that saved Southeast Asia from Communist domination and the world from a nuclear war.

They will surely deal more kindly with the President than today's peaceniks with a penchant for wishful thinking in a world of hard and often brutal facts.

And in 1965 the facts in Southeast Asia were brutal, indeed. The Red world was not as split as it is today. The Asian nations, which had only recently liberated themselves from colonialism, were weak and most of them small. Even the most populous ones like India, Indonesia and Pakistan were hardly the repository of power.

There was a power vacuum in Southeast Asia which the Communists, backed by Russia and Red China, attempted to fill. Without the protective shield provided by the United States there would be today few, if any, free nations in Asia.

American aid also provided the South Vietnamese with the first stable government in their history. President Thieu's government, fragile though it may still be, is more firmly in the saddle than many critics of Saigon expected.

A stable government and some ability to provide their own security are the strongest cards the South Vietnamese now have in their dealings with North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

None of this means that a peace settlement is near. After Russia's reckless invasion of Czechoslovakia, there is no room for optimism.

As Secretary of State Dean Rusk warned: The threat to Southeast Asia — or Europe and the Middle East — is not mitigated by the fact that the Red world is no longer monolithic or that Hanoi is at odds with Peking.

Mao Tse-tung, Ho Chi Minh and the rulers of Russia continue to preach the same doctrine of militant communism and promote the same techniques of expansion through so-called wars of national liberation.

Nevertheless, because of President Johnson's determination to resist Communist aggression in Vietnam and his courage to risk unpopularity, time is no longer on the side of the Communists.

Drew Pearson Says

This Election Shows the Need Of Reforming Electoral College

WASHINGTON — Whoever wins this election, two things should stand out as lessons to the American people.

One is that they need a drastic revision of the present extravagant system of raising money whereby a candidate must either be very wealthy or must go into political hock to finance his campaign.

Second, we need a complete revision of our complicated and almost unworkable electoral college system.

This system, inherited from the days of George Washington, lets the American people select electors who are not bound to vote for the candidates for whom the American people vote and to whom the electors are pledged—except in a few states, and in those states the penalties for not doing so are minor. This makes it possible, in theory at least, for the electors to vote for any regardless of the wishes of the people.

If the electors fail to cast a majority vote for any candidate, power to elect the President then passes to the House of Representatives, where the Congressmen from each state are free to vote for any one of the three top candidates selected by the electoral college.

Yet the Constitution provides that in the House each state delegation has just one vote. That vote would be determined by a poll of the delegation. But if a state delegation should be evenly divided and unable to agree on a candidate by majority vote, it would not have a vote.

Further, the Constitution requires only that a quorum of two-thirds of the states be represented in the House selection of a President.

The Constitution provides in Article II that if the electors report they have failed to elect a President, then the House shall "immediately" vote on the President. There is no definition of what "immediately" means, beyond the provision that if the House shall have failed to select a President by Inauguration Day, then the Vice President — who in the meantime presumably has been selected by the Senate—"shall act as President, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the President."

Vague Constitution
The Constitution does not say that the Vice President shall become President. And it does not state how long this situation would continue.

The Senate, like the House, is not bound to vote for the Vice Presidential candidate with the highest popular vote, but can select either of the two top candidates in the electoral college vote. And again, since the electoral college is not bound by law to vote for the most popular candidates, it theoretically could give enough votes to a minority candidate—such as George Wallace—to make him one of the two top candidates.

The 25th Amendment to the Constitution, adopted after the assassination of President Kennedy, provides that if the President is removed from office, resigns, or dies, the Vice President shall become President. It makes no reference to a situation in which no President has been elected either by the electors or the House of Representatives.

The same amendment provides that whenever a vacancy exists in office of Vice President, the then President shall nominate a Vice President, who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both houses of Congress. But this amendment does not state what shall be the case when the Vice President is "acting" as President.

This raises the question of what would happen if the Vice President were acting as President, as provided in Article II of the Constitution, when no President has been elected by Inauguration Day. Would he "act" as President for two years? Or four years? And would he have the power to nominate his own Vice President?

Clearly, the selection of the President of the most powerful nation on earth should not be subject to so many questions and risks wherein presidential electors or members of Congress could totally disregard the will of the people.

Changing the Constitution
Several attempts have been made to rewrite the Constitution, by amendments, to cover potential crises. Unfortunately, none of them has gone far enough to take care of all the questions raised in this year's election.

The Twelfth Amendment, ratified in 1804, changed the constitutional provision that the two top candidates in electoral voting should be President and Vice President, respectively. Under that system, this year we might have had Richard Nixon as President and Hubert Humphrey as his Vice President.

The 20th amendment, ratified in 1933, changed the date for starting the terms of office of the President and Vice President from March 4 to Jan. 20 in the years following Presidential election days. It also tried to solve the problem of what happens if a President-elect dies before he takes office or if there has been an election deadlock. It declared that in the event of the death of the President-elect, "the Vice President-elect shall become President." It then goes on to say that if a President has not been chosen by the time he should take office, or has failed to qualify for other reasons, "The Vice President-elect shall act as president until a President shall have qualified."

But again the amendment does not spell out how long the Vice President shall "act" as President, whether he actually becomes President if no Presidential candidate does qualify, or how such a candidate can qualify for the office if he has not done so by Inauguration Day.

It's all most confusing. And it will take some expert perhaps an appeal to the Supreme Court to straighten out the question of who is elected if neither Nixon nor Humphrey gets the required 270 electoral votes to make him President.

The second great problem of political money raising will be discussed in an early column.

Johnson Takes Calculated Risk In Bombing Halt of N. Vietnam

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — In halting the bombing of North Vietnam, President Johnson is gambling on a Joint Chiefs of Staff assessment that Ho Chi Minh's main line armies have been defeated and do not have the capacity to carry out indefinitely meaningful major attacks in the south.

These estimates indicate that the war strain on Ho's manpower is too great, that the caliber of his troops is deteriorating and that he is not capable of moving the large amounts of arms and materiel required when faced with continued U.S. bombing of the Ho Chi Minh trails in Laos and South Vietnam and the repeated destruction of his major supply dumps in the south.

This is why the President has decided to do what some of his advisers have argued against — agreeing to Ho's terms, a bombing halt with no concessions in return.

For Ho has promised nothing. He has not agreed to deescalate the war, to stop infiltrating troops and arms, to reduce terror in the cities or to kill fewer Americans. He is at liberty to increase the pace of the war if he chooses.

Top U.S. military men, however, believe that North Vietnam may be forced to deescalate — out of sheer exhaustion.

UCCC Names Police Advisory Board

A Police Science Advisory Council has been appointed by the Board of Trustees at Ulster County Community College to study the feasibility of the college offering a new curriculum in this area.

The committee is composed of law enforcement personnel, correction administration executives, legal and judicial experts and guidance personnel.

The newly formed council will hold its initial session on Wednesday, Nov. 6, at a luncheon scheduled for noon at the College's Stone Ridge campus.

At that meeting, the council members will hear James D. Stinchcomb, a specialist in public service for the American Association of Junior Colleges. Formerly a member of the staff of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, he had primary responsibility with that group to develop police science programs at colleges throughout the nation.

The purpose of the meeting will be to identify courses and/or programs needed in the law enforcement field in Ulster County and the surrounding areas and to examine tentative programs which may be appropriate and relevant.

Members of the Advisory Council include Ulster County

Judge Raymond J. Mino; Ulster County District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca; Assistant District Attorney James H. Fisher; Police Chief Francis Fagan, and Ulster County Sheriff William B. Martin; Major W. Monahan, the Kingston force.

Fish Sr. Is Feted, Favors Israeli Arms

Hamilton Fish Sr. told a gathering in New York City at a recent presentation of an award by the State of Israel that the United States should supply the Israel state with "modern armaments" as soon as peace is achieved in Vietnam.

The remark came during the presentation of the award for his being the author of a 1922 resolution, known as the Fish-Lodge resolution favoring the establishment of a Jewish Homeland in Palestine.

Israel Council General Rehavem Amir presented the award to the former congressman before a group of invited friends and members of Congress at the Council General's New York office.

The former Congressman was author of the resolution, also called the American Balfour or Palestine Resolution that passed both the House and the Senate and was signed by President Harding. It favored the establishment of a homeland in Palestine for the Jews of Central and Eastern Europe where their civil rights, culture, traditions and religion would be guaranteed.

During the presentation Fish had this to say:

"I have recently returned from a visit to the State of Israel where I saw and was amazed at the extraordinary development, progress and unity during the first 20 years of its existence."

"As a result of the passage of this resolution, hundreds of millions of dollars, probably more than a billion, poured into Palestine from American sources to turn that arid land from Dan to Beersheba into a land of milk, honey and green pastures."

"Israel asks nothing from the United States except arms to fight its own defense. If President Johnson does not succeed in making an honorable peace agreement in Vietnam in the near future, Soviet Russia is apt to succeed in its plans to control the Eastern Mediterranean and to achieve economic, political and military domination of the Arab States, to take over Aden and very probably, with the help of Nasser, to seize the Arabian peninsula."

Fish ended his remarks by saying "Israel is our only reliable friend in the Mid East and we should provide her with modern armaments to defend her country against an invasion from the combined Soviet armed Arab Nations."

"I am definitely in favor of the survival of the State of Israel in the interest of the United States and for the preservation of freedom and democracy."

"We should provide Israel immediately with 50 Phantom Jets and surplus war material when peace has been achieved" in Vietnam, to counteract the military activities of the Communists in Moscow in arming her enemies who seek to destroy the young Republic of Israel."

Those invited to the ceremony included New York Senator Jacob Javits, Hamilton Fish Jr., New York State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz, Congressmen Ogden Reid, Seymour Halpern and Theodore Kupferman.

Speaker Named For Library Council Meet

Professor Pauline Atherton, chairman of the committee on academic and research libraries of the Syracuse University School of Library Science, will be the speaker at the annual fall meeting of the Southeastern New York Library Resources Council to be held at Blythwood Hall, Bard College, Thursday.

House Committee Keeping Close Eye On Television Election Projections

NEW YORK (UPI)—When the three major television networks project the winners tonight before all the polls have closed, congressional critics will be watching.

Some lawmakers think late-hour voters might either be discouraged from going to the polls if their candidate is reported a certain loser or they might be inclined to dump the projected loser and get on the winning bandwagon.

Spokesmen for NBC, CBS and ABC told United Press International they would project the outcome of the presidential election before all the nation's polls are closed. But they said they would use the "greatest caution" in making projections on the national, state and local levels, and that all projections would be clearly called as such. The networks said broadcast of projections before poll closings would have no more effect on late-hour voters than the results of various polls that have been released with considerable publicity over the past few months.

But some congressmen weren't so sure. "We will be watching closely to see what is done by the networks, how it is done and what the effect is," said Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D. W. Va., chairman of the House Commerce Committee. He said any action on projections in future elections will depend on what he and members of his committee feel about broadcast coverage tonight.

CBS News Vice President Bill Leonard, recalling his network projected victory for Lyndon B.

Johnson by 9:03 p.m. EST in the 1964 election, said he does not think such an early projection would be possible this year because the race is closer. But Leonard said if an early projection is possible, CBS "will not withhold information or place arbitrary restrictions on the dissemination of information."

NBC said it will make projections on a state-by-state basis, and when 270 electoral votes are projected for one presidential candidate, "that's it."

An ABC spokesman agreed on the election's closeness. "There is a definite feeling that a victory projection will not come as early as in 1964," he said. "In this election the whole thing may depend on California, so it's going to be very interesting."

Earth Orbit Soviet Ship Sole Mission

MOSCOW (AP) — The president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, Mstislav V. Keldysh, said today the Soyuz 3 spacecraft tested by cosmonaut Georgy T. Beregovoy last week is intended only for earth orbit missions, not a trip to the moon.

Keldysh did not make clear whether the Russians must await a new type of spacecraft for a manned moon mission or could use a modified form of the Soyuz.

Asked at a news conference on the flight of Soyuz 3, the unmanned sister ship, Soyuz 2, when a Soyuz would take a man to the moon, he said it is "an orbital craft" only.

Beregovoy, who flew in orbit for almost four days, was asked if several Soviet spaceships would be linked up in earth orbit to form one huge craft for a manned trip to the moon or planets.

Beregovoy replied cryptically: "This can be done."

A Western diplomat and science expert interpreted the reply as a possible hint on the next Soviet step in space.

Such plans are never announced in advance.

city voters afforded a 12th choice of aldermanic candidates.

In addition to presidential and vice presidential selections, voters are asked to elect Adrian P. Burke, associate judge, Court of Appeals, running on all four major tickets unopposed.

Six candidates seek the office of U.S. Senator. They are Republican-Liberal Sen. Jacob K. Javits, Democrat Paul O'Dwyer, Conservative James Buckley, Socialist Laborite John Emanuel, Socialist Worker Hedda Garza and Freedom and Peace Party candidate Herman B. Ferguson.

Some confusion on the part of the voter is expected in the selection of three out of six candidates for the office of Justice of the Supreme Court. Instead of just being able to vote "across" the machine, the voter may make his selections by moving "up and down" in the same or several columns to make a choice. He is entitled to three selections and they may be made from among any or all candidates of the three major parties. The Republicans offer George L. Cobb, William F. Christiana and John T. Casey. The Democrat candidates include Abraham Streifer, A. Franklin Mahoney and Milton Levine. Casey, Cobb and Mahoney are also endorsed by the Conservatives.

The state senate race has four candidates, incumbent Sen. Jay P. Rolison, Democrat Alban E. Woolley, Conservative Michael Lange and Liberal Joseph A. Marvella.

The contest for sheriff is between the incumbent William B. Martin who is endorsed by the Democrat, Conservative and Liberal parties and Thomas Mayone, Republican.

The coroner seat, held by Henry S. Hartley is uncontested. There are 13 aldermanic contests in the City of Kingston, with two wards in which there is no opposition.

In a last minute change in the Town of Saugerties the polling place in the 12th District was changed this morning from the Anthony Rizzo Nationwide Insurance Building on Barclay Heights to Scarlilli's Car Wash and Luncheonette on Rt. 9W.

Achiutla, Mexico, is the sacred city of the Mixtecs and site of the legendary birth of their ancestors from two trees.

'The man from the paper' is a teacher for boys in a class by themselves

Your newspaperboy manages a business of his own. And that's why having a newspaper route can be so important to a boy. He earns his own money on the route, and he learns the basics of doing business. He buys his papers from us, he sells them to you. He is salesman, deliveryman, collector, and bookkeeper.

Yet while he has a business of his own, he is not entirely "on his own". The man from the paper is there—in his corner with friendly counsel and guidance. He knows boys and he makes his career working with boys. He also knows business methods—the ways in which a boy can make a success on his route. These he passes on to the boy. He is a teacher and the class he conducts is for boys "in a class by themselves".

If you think it would be worthwhile for your son to acquire the valuable lessons that come with newspaper route management, phone or write as today—

Buffalo Trial Is Put Over For Three on Drug Charges

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The trial of Dr. Leslie A. Fiedler, 51, his wife and a youth on narcotics charges has been postponed until early February.

Chief Judge Sebastian J. Belomo of City Court acted Monday to reschedule the trial for the noted literary critic after defense lawyer Herald P. Fahringer Jr. said he planned to make an appeal of a decision by the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court.

The Appellate Division voted 3-2 last Thursday, refusing to suppress evidence the defense contends police obtained illegally with an electronic eavesdropping device.

Fahringer said he would seek permission Friday to continue the appeal in the State Court of Appeals in Albany. The appeal would be made in the case of Fiedler's son, Kurt, 27, who pleaded guilty earlier to a charge of possession of marijuana. The result of the appeal could have a direct bearing on the elder Fiedler's trial, Fahringer said.

Fiedler, his wife Margaret, 49, Kurt Fiedler and his wife, Emile, another son, Michael, Charles Hasley, 19, and another youth were arrested during a raid on the Fiedler home near the State University of Buffalo campus on April 28, 1967.

Fahringer has argued the police used evidence obtained through an electronic "bug" to obtain a search warrant and that they were guilty of invasion of privacy.

Fahringer said police equipped a teen-aged girl with the electronic transmitter and sent her to the Fiedler home several times to broadcast conversations to detectives stationed outside.

Leslie Fiedler is an English professor at the State University of New York at Buffalo and the author of "Love and Death in the American Novel," and other works of literary criticism.

Kingston Man Is Appointed To State Police

Supt. William E. Kirwan of the New York State Police has announced that 105 young men, including a Kingston resident, have accepted appointments as troopers and have been assigned to the Basic Training School of the State Police Academy.

Mental Health Seeks Unwanted TV, Radio Sets

Unwanted television and radio sets are being sought by the Ulster County Association for Mental Health for the use of inmates of Wallkill State Prison in vocational training.

The sets, which can be in any condition will be used in a variety of demonstrations and as teaching aids. Parts may be used to rebuild other sets.

The sets may be brought to the Mental Health office at 27 East O'Reilly Street or to the prison on Route 208. The Mental Health office is open on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Inmates at Wallkill are, for the most part, those who have earned a good prison record and who will shortly be eligible for release. Preparing a man for work when he is released is a significant factor in successful rehabilitation, says the association.

Set Narcotics Talk

The Poughkeepsie Chapter of Parents Without Partners will meet Wednesday night at 8 p.m. at the Chateau D'Alfredo, Winder Road, Village of Wappinger. Guest speaker will be Captain Hugh Dakin of the Poughkeepsie Town Police Department, who will discuss teenage use of narcotics.

Included in the 105 was Joseph C. Mikesh of 100 Wurts Street.

The 16-week course is being conducted at Camp Smith, Peekskill, and will include 640 hours of instruction and training in all phases of law enforcement work. Those completing the school will continue their training in the field, working during the rest of their first year under the guidance of experienced troopers.

Lt. Robert J. Cummings of the training section has been assigned to overall supervision of the school. Sgt. Maynard T. Roman of Troop D, Oneida, is serving as his administrative assistant.

The following troopers have been assigned to the school as counselors:

Don J. Barnes, Troop A, Batavia; Douglas R. Muldoon, Troop B, Saranac Lake; Holger Beck, Troop C, Oneonta; David N. Paul, Troop D, Oneida; Marvin H. Cody, Troop E, Canandaigua; Raymond R. LaGoy, Troop F, Newburgh; Warren C.

2 Upstaters Killed in Viet

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two more servicemen from upstate New York have died in the Vietnam War.

The Defense Department said Monday that Navy radarman 3 C. Keith W. Duffy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd W. Houghtaling Jr. of Canajoharie, was killed in action.

Airman 1.C. Michael G. Hoff, husband of Mrs. Eileen L. Hoff of Newark, east of Rochester, died not from hostile action, the federal agency said in Washington.

SALEM, Mich. (UPI)—The plane was soaring 2,000 feet over the autumn-splashed southeastern Michigan countryside.

The pilot died.

Suggestions Offered On Sending Yule Gifts

Expressing concern over poorly wrapped packages mailed to Vietnam and other areas in the Pacific, postal officials have advised the public that all articles should be packed in boxes of wood, metal, solid fiberboard or strong double faced corrugated fiberboard.

The officials said that all fiberboard boxes should be securely wrapped in heavy paper which materially strengthens the package. Each box should be well tied with strong cord. Sufficient cushioning material should be used to prevent any rattling or loosening of articles within the package.

Parcels should be clearly addressed on one side only, and should have the address and return address written again inside the package in case the exterior wrapping should come off.

Postmaster Oscar V. Newkirk noted that special attention again will be placed on the delivery of mail to servicemen in Vietnam and the surrounding area, and stressed the use of APO and FPO numbers on all overseas military mail.

Deadlines for gifts to all members of the Armed Forces, breathing before he collapsed in the Marine Recruit Depot, Annapolis, was scheduled.

Push Probe Of Break-in At Shokan Home

County Sheriff's Deputies are continuing an investigation of a break-in at the home of Werner Bamberger of Shokan in which a quantity of electrical appliances and clothing were taken sometime Thursday night and Friday morning.

Deputies Barton Kniffin and Stephen Rosenstein said Town of Olive Constable George Reimair reported the break-in. Entry was gained by breaking a window in a back door. The loot was listed as an electric can opener, electric razor, flashlight, timer and some clothing.

Dorplan Marine Dies

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Marine Pfc. Lannie C. Thomas, 19, of Schenectady, N.Y., died in a recruit dispensary Sunday after complaining of chest pains, base officials said.

Marine authorities said Thomas as complained of irregular breathing before he collapsed in the Marine Recruit Depot, Annapolis, was scheduled.

Thomas was the son of Audu-ri Clayton.

jumped at the chance to accompany his brother-in-law, pilot David Wright, 38, of Landenberg, Pa., in the single-engine, four-passenger plane on a short flight to do some aerial photography Saturday evening.

"We'd just taken off and he started a turn and he passed right out," Steele said. "I was taking a picture out of the window and when I came up from my camera I found his head lying on my shoulder."

"I was scared all right, but I got to thinking."

"I thought if I could get the plane down low enough and slow enough, it shouldn't be more serious than an automobile accident."

But first Steele had to learn to fly. He took over the controls from the pilot, who was slumped over the wheel.

"I spent maybe 15 minutes getting the feel of it," Steele said.

"I found out how to throttle it and I was able to control the speed. I found out how to give it more gas when it needed more gas."

But night was falling and the checked fields below looked unfamiliar to Steele from the air.

So he decided to land "at the first place I could," one promising-looking field near this Washtenaw County community about 25 miles west of Detroit. He brought the plane in, it rolled to the edge of the field and crashed into a ditch.

"The field wasn't wide enough," said Steele, who suffered scratches.

A sheriff's deputy said Steele "dumped the plane a little, but he made a real good landing considering."

He said Wright suffered a fatal heart attack.

Wendover, Utah

It's Strange All Over Area

WENDOVER, Utah (AP) — Wendover, age 61, is a strange little community—population 750—with a strange history. And it sits on the edge of some of the strangest countryside in the world, a sheet of snowy-white salt.

Split down the middle by the Utah-Nevada line, half the town observes the conservative laws inspired by Utah's Mormon Church. The other half is an around-the-clock miniature Las Vegas, replete with flashing neon, gambling, liquor and go-go girls.

One of the two casinos on the Nevada side is just inches over the line. A sign outside proclaims "This is the Place," a not-too-subtle play on Brigham Young's declaration to his pioneer Mormons when they arrived to settle Salt Lake City, 120 miles east of Wendover.

Despite the casinos, there is no bank. And no cemetery; those who die are buried in Tooele, 75 miles east, the county seat on the Utah side, or Elko, 110 miles west, the county seat in Nevada.

Each Has Own Jail

Deputy Sheriff Marion Carter enforces the Utah law, while Deputy Earl Lacey handles the Nevada trade. And each has his own jail.

Wendover is a watering hole for the American tourist, who doesn't find much to tour within a hundred miles. Another sign says "Where the West Begins"—a roadside refrain found at dozens of towns from the Mississippi to the Pacific.

Most of Wendover's residents are salt miners, railroaders, or employees of one of the casinos, two hotels, seven motels, four restaurants, 13 service stations and two garages.

Adjoining Wendover is an abandoned airfield, where, 23 years ago, a solemn group of Army Air Force volunteers practiced again and again the atomic bomb missions that destroyed Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and brought an end to World War II.

More than 17,000 men once were stationed at the base.

Within an airhorn blast of the trucks that roar down U.S. 40 through Wendover are the Bonneville Salt Flats, a 200-square-mile section where the salt is at its purest and lies perfectly level.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Comptroller of the Currency today issued a call for a statement of the condition of all national banks at the close of business Wednesday Oct. 30.

Similar calls were issued by the Federal Reserve for state banks which are part of the Federal Reserve System, and by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. for banks with insured deposits which are not members of the Federal Reserve.

It's the world's best racing surface. Late each summer, men with sleek, high-powered machines and a platoon of mechanics put up at Wendover for a few days of speed on wheels.

Salt the Story

The story of the salt is the story of Wendover. It begins millions of years ago, when the entire West, from California to the Rockies, was undersea.

Limestone beds of the sea floor were faulted and cracked, producing mountains and valleys.

In western Utah, the mountains formed a closed circle and glaciers flowed down the peaks to create prehistoric Lake Bonneville, once as big as Lake Michigan.

The effect, as one geologist explains, was "a giant bathtub—a tub without a drain."

Most of Lake Bonneville evaporated over time. What's left is the Great Salt Lake—itsself 25 per cent salt—and the one-half billion tons of salt on the flats.

To the pioneers, the salt was a barrier worse than any mountain.

In 1846, George Donner led a party across the salt to Pilot Peak, just north of Wendover. Scores of oxen and other animals died in the horrible journey. Tracks of the surviving wagons are still etched in the salt.

By 1900, the need for a direct route to the West Coast was still unfulfilled, and the Western Pacific Railroad determined to cross the flats.

With great difficulty, the road bed was pushed across. And to provide water and service for the steam engines, the railroad built Wendover, in 1907. Water was piped by gravity from a spring on Pilot Peak.

About 100 rail workers lived in Wendover for nearly a half-century. The town and its water yielded to the diesel, and the railroad work force was cut to 25.

While fast transportation had finally conquered the flats, fast communication had not—until the first coast-to-coast telephone line was joined at Wendover on July 28, 1914.

Twenty-eight years later, the first transcontinental all-weather buried cable was completed at Wendover.

Wendover lives on one industry besides racing, and it too depends on the salt. The Kaiser Aluminum Co., with a system both imaginative and ridiculously simple, sends trainloads of potash fertilizer from Wendover each year.

A ditch 54 miles long, cut into the salt in a centrifugal pattern, collects brine and empties it into evaporating ponds. The liquid contains potassium chloride, easily milled into potash.

"The potash plant has taken up the slack for the railroad," says Mayor John Susich, 52, operator of the Western Motel and Cafe and the Texaco station.

"Wendover is a growing town. And it's a good little town, with good people."

off sacrificing some income for growth.

Amer. Electric Power has a long-standing record of dividend increases and it is possible that a modest raise will soon be forthcoming. Hold your other six utilities, which offer an adequate income with moderate growth expectancy.

Conversely, Texaco, Inc. pays at a modest rate but has an aggressive record of growth and for this reason should be retained. The bond and preferred issues which you hold provide stability and income and should remain in your portfolio. Union Pacific, a land play situation, should be held despite its low yield.

A switch from Westinghouse Electric common to the $3.80 preferred will increase your income. The sharp runup in Montgomery Ward shares following a merger proposal presents an excellent opportunity to switch to Winn-Dixie for increased yield.

Crowds, Salute Welcome British Queen to Brazil

BRASILIA (AP) — Diplomats, politicians and socialites gathered in this inland capital to welcome Queen Elizabeth II today for the start of her official visit to Brazil.

The British monarch arrived in Rio de Janeiro aboard the royal yacht Britannia under an overcast sky. A 21-gun salute marked the entrance of the yacht and five British and Brazilian escort ships into Rio's Guanabara Bay.

Queen Elizabeth and her husband, Prince Philip, took a plane for Brasilia after a two-hour stopover in Rio. The federal capital was spruced up and keyed up for the royal visit. Edges of sidewalks along the queen's route were freshly whitewashed. More than 1,200 invitations were distributed for her visit to Brazil's Congress.

'Most Wanted,' Fellow Fugitive Seized on Coast

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Robert Lee Carr, 22, of Sunbury, Pa., one of the nation's 10 most wanted fugitives, and Michael Lynn Clark, 20, his fellow fugitive from a Pennsylvania jail, were arrested here Monday.

FBI agents took Carr into custody at a suburban Los Angeles gas station where he was working under the name of Robert Daniels. Clark was arrested nearby. They were arraigned before the U.S. Commissioner here on a federal charge of violating an escape and rescue statute.

Carr, Clark and two others escaped from the Northumberland County Jail at Sunbury, Pa., on Sept. 16 after assaulting a deputy U.S. marshal and locking him in a prison cell. The fugitives fled with weapons, ammunition, money and an automobile stolen from the marshal.

During their flight, the four allegedly ransacked a woman's home at Millersburg, Pa., handcuffed her to a chair and fled with rifles and $6,000. They also were linked with a number of other holdups before State Police captured two of them after a gun battle on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. Carr and Clark avoided arrest at the time.

Three of 30 Commandos From North Korea Slain

SEOUL (AP)—South Korean counterespionage command headquarters said today troops and police have killed three members of a North Korean commando group of 30 that landed far down the east coast Saturday and killed three villagers. One South Korean soldier was slain.

Lt. Gen. Yu Kun-Chang, director of the command, said the North Koreans assembled the villagers near Uichin, 130 miles southeast of Seoul. Uichin is about 135 miles south of the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea.

His announcement said the North Koreans told the villagers at gunpoint they port North Korea's regime, then beat a youth to death as warning.

He did not disclose whether the commando group had fled or was still being hunted.

While North Korean soldiers almost nightly try to infiltrate across the zone, this was the first raid by especially trained commandos since Jan. 21. Then the commandos invaded Seoul in an attempt to assassinate President Chung Hee Park and most were killed.

At Panmunjom, the truce village, the U.N. Command and the North Koreans accused each other of firing artillery across the zone.

North Korea charged U.S. artillery fired 160 rounds in support of a raiding party in the west-central and central sectors of the zone Sunday.

Clamp Heavy Guard On Jordan's Capital

By ELIAS ANTAR

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Armored cars and steel-helmeted troops today patrolled the streets of the Jordanian capital, still gripped by tension following widespread street fighting Monday in which 16 persons were reported killed and 40 wounded.

King Hussein clamped a heavy guard on his restive, divided country in an attempt to prevent further clashes between troops loyal to him and the Palestine guerrilla groups who have made his kingdom a base for terrorist operations against Israel.

All demonstrations were banned until further notice. An 18-hour curfew, between 4 p. m. and 10 a. m., was imposed.

The government announced the arrest of an undisclosed number of guerrilla leaders charged with responsibility for Monday's violence, the bloodiest confrontation so far between the army and the guerrilla groups demanding a free hand against Israel.

Tough Bedouins of the Arab Legion manned checkpoints at strategic intersections inside Amman. Patrol cars armed with Bren guns roared through the streets.

Several intersections still bore signs of the fighting. Army troops were tearing down stone barricades thrown up by guerrillas and demonstrators.

Telephone communications between Amman and neighboring Arab capitals were restored this morning.

The government charged the Victory Phalanges, a splinter guerrilla group, precipitated the violence by attacking a police patrol before dawn. It accused the group of being "paid agents" of a foreign power whose aim was to foment civil strife in Jordan and not to fight the common enemy, Israel.

Hussein did not identify the foreign power but the Victory Phalanges is headed by a former Syrian army major, Taher Dablan.

By placing the blame on the one splinter group, Hussein apparently was trying not to antagonize the other more important guerrilla group in Jordan.

A communique from the interior ministry said committees had been set up to investigate the uprising with a view to inflicting the "severest penalties" on those responsible.

Palestinian sources in Damascus said Hussein was negotiating with the leaders of the major Palestinian groups in an attempt to reach a settlement with the Victory Phalanges, El Fatah, the leading guerrilla organization, was reported mediating between the king and the Phalanges.

Meanwhile, Egyptian sources said two Israeli torpedo boats fired on two small Egyptian water tankers in the Gulf of Suez and hindered their trip to the Red Sea port of Hurghada.

The sources said one tanker returned to its base but the other carried on to Hurghada after the Israelis left.

At the United Nations, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban met privately with U.N. peace envoy Gunnar V. Jarring. Diplomatic sources said Eban gave Jarring Israel's reply to a series of questions submitted by Egypt, but Israel's reply was in the form of a series of questions addressed to Egypt. Many diplomats at the U.N. were growing increasingly pessimistic about Jarring's chances of advancing Israel and the Arabs toward a peace settlement.

UC Financial

Speaker on Thursday Night

Guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Ulster County Financial Council to be held at the Granit Hotel, Thursday night, will be James F. Finke, executive vice-president of the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, Inc., of Albany.

Considered an expert on federal and state taxes, Finke has been appointed by the Governor of New York State each year for the last 15 to be spokesman for the State at the annual conference of the National Tax Association.

His topic will be Viewing State Aid with a Good Measure of Healthy Skepticism.

Several intersections still bore signs of the fighting. Army troops were tearing down stone barricades thrown up by guerrillas and demonstrators.

Telephone communications between Amman and neighboring Arab capitals were restored this morning.

The government charged the Victory Phalanges, a splinter guerrilla group, precipitated the violence by attacking a police patrol before dawn. It accused the group of being "paid agents" of a foreign power whose aim was to foment civil strife in Jordan and not to fight the common enemy, Israel.

209 Comes Up

With 2 Mishaps

Kingston State Police investigated two motor vehicle accidents which occurred on Route 209 in the Town of Marlborough Monday night.

Troopers reported Clarence Gardner Jr., 18, of Appletree Drive, Saugerties, was driving north on the highway at 3:25 p. m. when he lost control on a right curve and the car skidded off the east shoulder. Gardner was not injured.

Bernard Smith, 37, of Wawarsing, escaped injury at 9:45 p. m. when his car hit a deer that leaped into the path of his vehicle on Route 209 in the Town of Marlborough. The deer was killed and removed by Game Protector Philip Gillen.

Health for All Cigarettes Can 'Gas' You, Too

Much importance has been attached to the tar and nicotine content in cigarette tobacco. All scientific opinion agrees that these elements are injurious to the lung, heart and other human tissues. And it is true that they have been reduced in some cigarette brands since the subject of smoking and health began receiving widespread attention.

But—are tar and nicotine the only harmful ingredients in cigarettes? Unfortunately, the answer is an emphatic no.

In a report to the June, 1968 convention of the American Medical Association, Dr. Gareth N. Green of Harvard University demonstrated that the gaseous components in cigarette smoke depress the protective ability of the lung cells to fight bacteria. Among the cigarettes he tested, some of those with the lowest tar and nicotine content were actually the worst offenders in this respect.

In other words, the reduction—or even the elimination—of tar and nicotine from cigarettes cannot render them "safe." There still is no such thing as a safe cigarette.

As to the hazards of cigarette smoking in general, a newly issued supplement to The Health Consequences of Smoking, published by the U.S. Public Health Service, gives eloquent testimony. The volume states that "life expectancy in young men is reduced by an average of eight years in 'heavy' cigarette smokers (two packs a day) and an average of four years in 'light' cigarette smokers (less than one-half pack)."

For more information about smoking and health, ask your Christmas Seal association for its free leaflet, Cigarette Smoking, The Facts.

Loaded Rifle in Car

Charged with having a loaded rifle in a car, two men were arrested early today by Kingston State Police on Coutant Road in the Town of Rosendale. Leo Vetrano, 35, of Rosendale, and Andrew Kelecsany, 26, of Gardiner, were arraigned before Rosendale Justice Wilfred Doolittle, and both entered a plea of guilty. Vetrano paid a $50 fine and Kelecsany was committed to the county jail for 20 days or until the fine is paid.

Troopers R. G. Bergin and J. G. Rose made the arrest.

Firearms Charge

Highland State Police arrested Ernest Brown, 47, of the Chasin Farm, Clintondale, Monday and charged him with illegal possession of a firearm. Brown, who allegedly chased Ruby Brown around as he held a .22 caliber pistol, was held in $500 bail pending a preliminary hearing Wednesday. The accused man was booked by Troopers Brian O'Connor and G. R. Mack at 5:45 p. m.

Note Achievements of County 4-H

Six hundred 4-H members, various subject matter project leaders, parents and friends attended the annual 4-H Achievement Program held recently at the Rondout Valley Central High School. Every 4-H'er, completing one or more 4-H projects, received a certificate and achievement pin from Ivan Warren, key banker of Ulster County. For the past 53 years the New York State Bankers Association has supplied the achievement pins.

Bernard McCabe, chairman of the 4-H Executive Committee, acted as master of ceremonies and assisted in the presentation of many of the awards.

County medals, supplied by commercial companies, were presented to 4-H'ers who had done outstanding work in

Consumer Advisor Slated As Extension Dinner Guest

The annual dinner meeting of the Ulster County Extension Service Association will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 13, at the Homewick Lodge, Spring Glen.

After dinner, a business meeting will be conducted when officers of the Association and Executive Committee members for the expired terms of the three divisions, will be elected. Following the meeting, Carlton Wright of Cornell University, will lecture on "Yesterday's Consumer in Tomorrow's Market." After the speaker the hotel will provide Broadway entertainment.

Tickets are available from the Extension Offices at 74 John St., Kingston, or from Executive Committee members of the three divisions. No tickets will be sold at the door.

CARLTON WRIGHT

The guest speaker is extension program leader for consumer education at the New York State Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics at Cornell. His staff provides information on products and services used by families and institutions to help make the best choice within the income available to them.

Wright started work in consumer education in 1948 when he organized a food information program covering metropolitan New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

During 1967, Wright spent three months supervising a survey in New York City on retail food prices in neighborhoods. Reference to the survey report has been made by several congressional committees.

MONKEY BRIDGE—Scouts of Troop 36 work their way across a 75-foot-long "monkey bridge" at Camp Apache where the troop recently held its annual Open House Day.

More than 200 scouts, parents and guests of Troop 36, sponsored by St. Mary of the Snow of Saugerties, attended the recent Open House Day at the troop's Camp Apache in Quarryville.

Special attractions at the affair, held annually, included rifle safety demonstrations, an Indian village, a 75-foot "monkey bridge" and many campfire activities.

Coffee and doughnuts greeted the visiting guests at the main cabin of the camp.

First on the activities list after sign-in by visitors was a demonstration of firing line safety by members of the troop. Blanks and "dry runs" were conducted by the Scouts to show visitors the safety procedures that are practiced on the range during "live fire" sessions.

An Indian village set up by the Troop 36 Indian Tribe was complete with an eight-foot teepee and stone fireplace. The Indians of the troop are scouts interested in the lore and history of the many American tribes and dress in authentic Indian costumes of their own making.

Ulster, Port Kiwanis Clubs Meet Nov. 18

Albert Brooker, immediate past president of Kiwanis Club of Ulster, announced the club will meet with the Port Jervis club on Nov. 18.

He also reported at a recent meeting that work had started on the recreation area in Halcyon Park on land donated by John Frederick, who has offered material from his gravel bank for grading of the land.

The Halcyon Park Civic Association has raised $600 for the project and the Kiwanis Club will match that amount, it was reported. Immediately underway is a 100x100-foot combination skating and basketball court.

Jack Whistance, proprietor of Lock, Stock and Barrel Shop, attended the recent meeting of the club and presented a program of jazz recordings from his collection of rare and original jazz records. Whistance was accompanied by Mrs. Whistance and their son Bruce, who operated the tape recorder during his father's remarks.

functions including Tenderfoot sites; Beaver, Arrow, Crow, the night as the arrow sought, its mark in the center of the Eagle, Fox, Panther and Tiger.

Climaxing the day's activities was a campfire ceremony held in the evening around the council fire. The opening ceremony was conducted by the troop's Indians who held a dance to the god of fire asking for him to light the council fire. The shrill sound of a flaming arrow broke the silence of fire ceremony.

In order to aid those leaving the campfire, a trail to the parking area was lined with lighted candles that guided scouts and guests. The trail was almost a quarter-mile long from the fire to the parking area. Scoutmaster George Karanza and assistant scoutmasters Tony Zmiyarch and Joe Romanowicz were on hand to supervise the day-long activities.

The next general membership breakfast-meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 19 at 7:45 a.m. at the Governor Clinton Hotel. The speaker and program will be announced.

Israel Emergency Drive Resolution Is Approved

A resolution approving a 1969 Israel Emergency Campaign was approved at a recent special meeting of the cabinet of the Kingston United Jewish Welfare Fund.

Ruins Probed

COIMBRA, Portugal (AP)—Archeologists are making rapid headway in uncovering the ruins of ancient Conimbriga, one of the largest Roman cities on the Iberian Peninsula. The excavation of Conimbriga, 10 miles southeast of this central Portuguese university town, was begun at the end of the last century under the patronage of Queen Amelia of Portugal.

The place now has been discovered to have been built on top of an Iron Age settlement. It was razed by the invading Suevo tribes in 468 A.D.

The most recent find was the main public baths. Previously a huge forum, villas and a temple foundation were uncovered.

Richard M. Kalish, general chairman of the campaign, made the announcement recently.

At the same time, the cabinet urged all persons to make cash payments on their 1968 pledges at this time.

Joseph Raziel, executive director of the Israel Aliyah Center in Philadelphia, spokesman for the Israeli Air Force during the six-day war, spoke at the meeting and detailed the actual situation in Israel and its needs now.

Action was taken by the local group followed an announcement that the United Jewish Appeal is launching a campaign aimed at raising more funds for Israel's humanitarian needs in 1969 than was raised in the wake of the six day war.

The local campaign cabinet will meet again on Wednesday at 8 p.m. to discuss the cleanup of the 1968 campaign as well as cash collection.

Men Like Mature Women Says Roman Cosmetician

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS

American women in general are more naturally beautiful than their European counterparts, asserts Eve of Roma. "It's the natural heritage... the mixed nationalities."

But, adds the Hungarian-born queen of Italian cosmetics, "The American woman's natural advantage is more than offset by the European's woman's know-how. On the continent, know-how is passed down from generation to generation and the women there try harder."

Eve believes "it is woman's most important duty to be beautiful... like the rose," and insists that for a woman to be truly beautiful she must be an individual and try to please men. "Because it's easier to get a man in America," she says, "so many American women don't play up to men or make up for them. They think it's enough to smear on a touch of lipstick just before their man comes home."

That doesn't mean that a woman should spend hours applying make-up. Eve, who notes that no more than 15 minutes a day is necessary for proper beauty care, believes that men don't really like a made-up looking woman. "And a well-cleaned skin is the most beautiful thing in the world," she adds.

Unfortunately, she says, the skin of most American women is so dehydrated, so terribly dry. "In Italy we eat everything—all the fats and oils—so the skin looks better. Here American women diet so."

The most important thing is for the skin to remain elastic, she asserts. To do this the skin must be prepared and must be nourished.

"But sleeping with face cream is absolutely taboo! It's bad for the sheets, for the husbands and for the skin."

Instead, she suggests that women put on nourishing cream for five minutes in the morning upon awakening. Another important beauty care routine she advises is to use a facial mask once or twice a week for from 5 to 15 minutes.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

New Look for Local Philharmonic

The 10th anniversary season of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic will open on Monday night, Nov. 11, at Kingston Community Theatre with a new look both on stage and in the lobby.

Male members of the orchestra will be attired in full dress, whereas only the conductor and soloists have been in the past. In the lobby of the concert hall there will be on display "Transparent Sculpture IV" by Louise Nevelson, world-renowned sculptress. In June 1968, this piece of sculpture was awarded to the Philharmonic by the New York State Council on the Arts, "for demonstrating that a regional concert ensemble can meet the high standards not usually to be found outside large metropolitan areas, for bringing fine live music to hundreds of thousands who might otherwise rarely or never hear it; and for the training and encouragement given to talented young people in a region that hitherto could provide them with no means for the development of their gifts. Only nine years ago, the Hudson Valley Philharmonic was made up of an enthusiastic group of amateurs. Since then, it has been transformed by its director, Claude Monteux, into a fully professional orchestra that now attracts international respected virtuosi."

monic is the only symphony orchestra to have received such an honor in the three years the awards have been given. Other award winners this year include: Albright-Knox Art Gallery, Art on Tour, Eastern Airlines, Endo Laboratories, The Ford Foundation, Lake George Park Commission, Paley Park, Society for the Preservation of Landmarks in Western New York, Waterford Museum and Cultural Center, WBAI-FM, and Alfred H. Barr Jr.

MRS. ROBERT THOMAS KEANE

Murray-Keane Nuptials Announced

St. Mary's Church, Kingston, was the setting of the wedding of Miss Colleen Murray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Murray, 296 Third Avenue, Kingston, and Robert Thomas Keane, son of Mrs. Verna Keane, 120 Esopus Avenue, Kingston, and the late Edward Keane, on Saturday, Oct. 26.

The Rev. John Farley officiated at the double ring ceremony. Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a silk organza gown. A crown of pearls and crystals held her fingertip veil and she carried a cascade of white carnations and orchids.

Miss Donna Murray, 296 Third Avenue, Kingston, served as maid of honor for her sister. She wore a melon color gown styled with an empire waistline and she carried a basket of yellow and tan carnations. John Keane, 120 Esopus Ave-

New Flu Outbreak For This Winter

The flu warning flag is up again! The U.S. Public Health Service Advisory Committee now warns that a new strain of Asian flu may give the nation another outbreak of this troublesome ailment this winter. The Committee, which earlier had given the country an "all clear," revised its flu prediction following the identification of a new strain in Hong Kong in July. Already the Hong Kong virus, a variant of the A2 type that gave the country the miseries last year, is beginning to spread.

"It is felt that the present change in the influenza virus," reports the Public Health Service, "increases the probability that influenza A2 will occur extensively in the United States in the 1968-69 season."

Current vaccines may provide only limited protection against the new A2 Hong Kong virus, according to the Public Health Service. Better protection against it will require a newly formulated vaccine. The development, manufacture and distribution to physicians of such a vaccine will require considerable time and only a limited number of doses will be initially available the agency reports.

In the meantime the Public Health Service recommends that currently available flu vaccines be given primarily to elderly persons or the chronically ill.

Influenza is a viral infection of the respiratory tract. It differs from a cold in severity and the extent of complications. Its symptoms include sudden chills, fatigue, headache, and general aches, with temperatures of 101 to 104 degrees. Sore throat and coughing may also occur as symptoms.

If you become a flu victim this winter, follow the advice recommended during an earlier epidemic by the Surgeon General—stay in bed, take aspirin, and drink plenty of fluids.

The Asian flu A2 strain first appeared on the world scene in 1957 and is believed to have started in Hong Kong. From there this virus, which affects people of all ages, has traveled around the world.

Fellowship Week For World YWCA

World Fellowship Week, that period when the Young Women's Christian Association throughout the United States and around the world stresses its work in 76 countries, will be celebrated in Kingston, November 10-16, beginning with a special World Fellowship service to be held at the YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue, on Sunday at 3 p.m. The guest speaker will be the Rev. Ebenezer Mane, assistant pastor of Fair Street Reformed Church. The Rev. Mr. Mane is a native of Nagpur, India, and will speak on the theme "Listen." A program of music will be provided by Mrs. William A. Roosa and Mrs. J. Anthony Hummel, accompanied by Mrs. Dewees DeWitt. All members and friends of the YWCA are invited to attend this service.

Nationally, the week will be launched with the annual World Fellowship Observance in the Washington, D. C. Cathedral on Sunday. The speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Bryant M. Kirkland, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City. Miss Nelson Bowen, president of the local YWCA, and Miss Joan Freeman, director, plan to attend this service.

"For the YWCA," Mrs. Walter Danford, World Fellowship chairman, says "this week is the time when we join with our friends throughout the United States and in the world to recognize the work which our Association does in helping to meet the needs of girls and women wherever they are. It gives us an opportunity to bring this important work to the attention of our communities and to our own members."

"Through the Mutual Service Program of the world YWCA, the Association in the United States carried responsibility for annually providing funds to make possible advisory service, training assistance and program grants to some 30 of the 76 countries in which the Association is currently at work," Mrs. Danford explained.

The YWCA in Kingston is a member of the Ulster County Community Chest.

Happy Birthday

MARY MARGARET McBRIDE

By DOROTHY A. NAREL

Mary Margaret McBride, journalist, radio personality and former woman's page editor of the Newspaper Enterprise Association, is celebrating her birthday today.

I have been privileged to spend many wonderful hours in the comfort of Mary Margaret's beautiful living room in front of the large fireplace sipping exotic teas from colorful mugs or filling the room with organ music.

I have watched Mary Margaret share her down-to-earth wisdom with neighbors during her WGHQ broadcasts three times a week. And although she states in her book OUT OF THE AIR, that she "... is not unique," she nonetheless has a faculty for touching many lives and making this world a far better place in which to live.

Mary Margaret is a long way from Missouri, the state in which she was born and educated. She began work as a reporter on the Cleveland Press and later was a special feature writer for the New York Evening Mail.

"I wanted to be a great writer, and now I never shall be," writes Mary Margaret in her book. She underestimates herself. Her numerous articles for such magazines as Cosmopolitan, Good Housekeeping, Saturday Evening Post, Readers Digest and other publications prove her talents with words.

Of course, all of Mary Margaret's experiences in the world of journalism prepared her for her rightful title as "First Lady of the Air." She joined WOR as the Martha Deane of the Air and later moved to CBS and ABC. Her radio interview program on NBC drew thousands of listeners.

Through the years, Mary Margaret has received many honors and tributes for her journalistic and radio efforts. A rose bears her name and she has been honored by kings. Her honors even include one presented to her by the American Newspaper Guild, Kingston Unit.

The world knows Mary Margaret as a leading interviewer and author. I know her as a person who loves her garden, likes to get up for an early walk, is an avid reader and loves people. Hypocrites and pretentious people annoy her, she likes people to be prompt for their appointments and she rejoices in the alertness of exuberance of youth.

Mary Margaret has had many interesting people cross her path—politicians, Swiss bell ringers, screwball inventors, trapeze artists, hog callers, even flagpole sitters. She has interviewed such personalities as Bob Hope, Jimmy Durante, Danny Kaye, the Quintuplets, Elizabeth Taylor, Admiral Byrd and James Thurber. She has met them all—the tale spinners, the adventurers, the optimists and the pessimists.

Somehow and somewhere she has found the time to author such books as "A Long Way From Missouri," "Harvest of American Cooking," "Tune in for Elizabeth," "America For Me," "How Dear to My Heart," "Here's Martha Deane," "Story of Dwight Morrow," "Beer and Skittles," "New York Is Everybody's Town," and Paris Is A Woman's Town." Her latest book is "The Growing Up of Mary Elizabeth."

To this delightful, lovable woman and friend, we say "Happy Birthday."

Helpful Hints

Always remove wash-and-up any large pores. Repeat this wear garments from dryer as treatment two or three times as soon as the drying cycle is day.

Completed. If allowed to stay in the dryer they will become wrinkled.

Oily skin needs to be soaped and rinsed twice every time you wash your face. Then pat it with an astringent to tighten.

Keep your hair fresh smelling by regular shampoos. A drop of your favorite perfume or toilet water in the rinse water will do wonders for feminine sweetness.

Dedication Ceremony

Members and friends of Court Santa Maria, No. 164, Catholic Daughters of America, are invited to the dedication ceremony of the flagpole at John A. Coleman school property on Friday at 2:30 p.m.

The flagpole has been donated by the Court in memory of all the men of Kingston and surrounding districts who gave their lives in the Vietnam conflict.

Election Program Held

The League of Women Voters presented a program of election information on Oct. 17 at the Plaza Heights Homemakers monthly meeting. It was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Anderson, 15 Appletree Drive, Saugerties. Hostesses were Mrs. David Cartmel and Mrs. John Chodoba.

The members exhibited terrariums made at a recent class and homemade toys. It was decided that food baskets would be prepared and distributed to needy families for Thanksgiving.

The next meeting will be on Nov. 21 at the home of Mrs. Robert Collette. Mrs. Frank Cox will present a program titled "Women's Role in Society."

College Briefs

Marian Bloom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon R. Bloom, 58 Whittier Boulevard, Poughkeepsie, appeared in the synchronized swimming show on October 26 at Monticello College, Godfrey, Ill. The swimming exhibition was staged by the Monticello Marlin Club for the more than 325 dads, mothers, and daughters who were on campus for the annual Dads Weekend.

Miss Bloom is a first year student at the two-year women's college, now in its 131st academic year.

A fun-filled weekend was enjoyed by parents from 17 states and three foreign countries. In addition to the swimming show, they were guests at a production by the drama department, "The Heiress," a horse show, a faculty reception, a dormitory open house and a Coronation Ball.

Miss Orinda E. Reid, The Parsonage, Star Route, Shokan, N.Y., is enrolled in the junior class at Union College for the fall term.

Miss Reid, the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. John Filson Reid, is a graduate of Hunter-Tannersville Central High School. She is majoring in elementary education. Union College is a senior liberal-arts college with an enrollment of 900 students. There are 100 students registered this fall from New York.

Miss Christine M. Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Davis of West Hurley was initiated into Alpha Lambda Chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta International Fraternity for college and university women. Miss Davis is a junior at Ohio State University majoring in Occupational Therapy.

Mr. and Mrs. Santo Francello of 209 Main Street, Saugerties, attended the annual Parents Weekend, Oct. 26-27, at the College of New Rochelle in Westchester County, N.Y., where their daughter Diana is a member of the junior class. Highlights of the weekend included a Saturday evening buffet which preceded a Parent-Daughter dance. Proceeds of the dance went to the Father's Club Scholarship Fund. The weekend closed Sunday with a Mass and brunch.

Miss Francello is a graduate of the Academy of St. Ursula in Kingston.

Donald Ian Lee of Accord was among the students at Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa., receiving advanced degrees in October. He earned his Bachelor of Science degree at Union College.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Anytime you close up a summer cabin, for goodness sake turn the drawers of your dressers upside down!

This way rodents and mice cannot make nests in them.

When we leave our vacation cabin each summer, we always remove all the drawers, turn them upside down and replace them in their special niches.

I also paint a residual bug killer on the bottom of each drawer where roach eggs usually collect.

Both of these steps prevent a lot of problems.

Mr. M. Griffin & Wife

Rah, rah, rah. Siss, boom, bah! And three cheers for Mr. Griffin. You're just as right as the vacation you took.

Turn all kitchen drawers upside down, too. I suggest that you do NOT close them entirely.

When you pull out that bottom drawer, sprinkle a few moth balls in the BOTTOM of each cabinet. Helps lots, too!

And another thing... be sure to turn off your refrigerator and leave the door wide open—and this means all the way! Prop open that door on the freezing compartment, too.

Most of us usually clean up quickly, defrost the refrigerator and leave the same day. I recommend that after going over the inside with baking soda on a damp cloth, that you wad up some sheets of newspapers and put a few of these loose wads on each shelf AND in the freezing compartment.

Also, pull out the hydrator tray, wipe it out and stand it on the floor so that any excess moisture can evaporate.

And don't forget to pull back the rubber gasket around the edge of the door and wipe away the moisture there with a dry sponge or paper towels. You'll probably find it full of liquid in the bottom. We usually do. If this is left in the refrigerator, it will cause rust, odors and mold.

With these few reminders, it'll be easier when you open the cabin up next season.

Always, Heloise

Letter of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

My husband is a "shower-howler." (He calls it singing!) He gets up before I do every morning, and believe me that must be the most horrible sound in the world to wake up to in the morning.

I decided to tape his howling for three mornings, then woke him up to it full blast with the recorder hidden so he had to listen to the whole "program."

It worked and is fast becoming a family joke!

Now I can hear the birds that sing around our house and they sound so much better at six o'clock in the morning!

Reader

Dear Heloise:

After fixing millions of school sandwiches, I finally started making one for MYSELF while the fixings were out.

For busy mothers, it's sure nice to have lunch read—yeah, even a peanut butter one!

Honolulu Mom

Dear Heloise:

The plastic stopper from a wine bottle serves better than a thimble to keep the grounds out of the stem in a percolator. Easier to handle and for free.

W. A. K.

Dear Heloise:

When placing a cover on a blanket or comforter, just put the blanket on your ironing board, slip the cover over both it AND the board and get the two corners in place.

Then grab those corners and pull blanket and cover off the board and shake into place.

Sure saves time and temper when it seems that four hands are needed to put a comforter in that cover!

Theresa Rys

Dear Heloise:

This column is written for you... the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

B'nai B'rith Women Plan Special Program

At the Wednesday, Oct. 23, meeting of Zephaniah Chapter, B'nai B'rith Women, which was held at Standard Furniture Company, Mrs. Harold Monashefsky announced the "Dolls for Democracy" program will be presented at Hurley School on Thursday, Mrs. Stephen Scher is in charge with the following women participating in the presentation: Mrs. David Gally, Mrs. Irwin Gellen, Mrs. Stanley Plasker, Mrs. Charles Ronder and Mrs. Seymour Semolof.

Mrs. Monashefsky will meet with representatives of the March of Dimes and Department of Health to discuss the possibility of B'nai B'rith Women organizing and servicing an "Operation Stork" project for this area. The purpose of this project would be to educate prospective mothers in effort to prevent birth defects.

Mrs. Monashefsky noted that satin pillow cases are on sale as a fund raising project. Any merchandising manager, Mrs. Diamond showed two films: one interested in purchasing one should contact Mrs. Burton Feit.

The program was turned over to Ted Weiner, manager of the Standard Furniture Store of Kingston, who introduced Mrs. Libby Diamond, public relations director of the Standard Furniture Co., and Gary Stammel, merchandising manager. Mrs. Burton Feit.

"Color Ideas: Your Key to Good Decorating" and "Furniture Arrangement Ideas." Mr. Stammel conducted a general question-answer period. He later advised individuals in furniture arrangements. Refreshments were served, courtesy of Standard Furniture Company.

Kennedy-McDermott Wedding Told

Miss Karen Jane Kennedy, daughter of Mrs. Kathryn O. Kennedy, 179 Millers Lane, Kingston, and Douglas Haig Kennedy, Lauderdale-by-the-sea, Fla., became the bride of William Vincent McDermott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Paul McDermott, Albany Avenue, Kingston, on Saturday, Oct. 26, at St. Joseph's Church, Kingston.

The Rev. James M. Keating officiated at the double ring ceremony. James Sweeney, organist, provided traditional wedding selections. Arrangements of white gladioli and white chrysanthemums decorated the altar and white satin bows marked the family pews.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She carried a colonial nosegay of white snowdrift pompons.

Mrs. J. Michael Loughran, Kingston, served as matron of honor. She carried a colonial nosegay of yellow chrysanthemums.

Robert K. Ploss, Kingston, was best man. Ushers were Bruce Kennedy, brother of the bride; and R. Abel Garraghan, Kingston.

After the wedding a reception for friends and relatives was held at Kirkland Hotel.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School and Vernon Court Junior College, Newport, R. I. She is employed by Northeast Airlines and is a provisional member of the Junior League.

Her husband is also a graduate of Kingston High School and Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass. He is now attending graduate school at Temple University, Philadelphia, Pa.

Books for Women

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Once upon a time there was a cook fired from the household of Mrs. John F. Kennedy because this cook had done a magazine article that purportedly gave away secrets of the former first lady's kitchen.

Now, that same cook, Anne-Marie Haste has written a cookbook—and there is not one mention of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis in it.

While this omission from "Annemarie's Personal Cook Book" (Bartholomew House) may disappoint the curious, the book should please readers interested primarily in good recipes and helpful suggestions about cooking and entertaining.

Miss Haste's book belongs to a proliferating type of cookbook aimed at the gift market and especially suitable for brides and young couples.

Her recipes are taken mostly from French, German, Italian and American cookery, with a few originals of her own, including an awesomely rich chocolate cheesecake and an unusual strawberry and yogurt soup. The final chapter covers cooking for children.

Some Review

With December now the third most popular month for weddings—after June and August—more and more such cookbooks are published in the fall. Following are some brief reviews.

"Table for Two" by Shirley Sarvis (Doubleday) provides a crash course in cooking, with menu suggestions, sound advice on cooking and serving equipment and interesting recipes such as Greek stiftado, spiced beef stew, or chutney orange chops.

"The Pots and Pans Cookbook" by Ann Seranne and Joan Wilson (Doubleday) is insurance against recipe failure. It not only keys recipes to specific sizes and designs of utensils, but also tells how the size, shape and material from which a pan is made can affect the success or failure of a recipe. The book represents value for small, medium and large families—with a variety of recipes serving two, four, six, eight or 10 persons.

"The Language of Cookery" by Betty Wason (World) contains helpful cooking advice as well as foreign terms that appear increasingly these days in cookbooks and food articles. This culinary dictionary is illustrated with line drawings of less well known ingredients and utensils; it also contains charts of meats, equivalents and pan sizes.

"The New York Times Large Type Cook Book" by Jean Hewitt (Golden Press) should be a boon to both eyeglass wearers and anyone who's ever had a recipe fail because she misread minuscule type. Clearly stated directions also help. The inventive recipes range from simple buttermilk gingerbread to flaming crown roast of lamb, bread pudding containing candied fruit and kirsch, and chocolate ice.

"The Ritz Carlton Cook Book" by Helen Ridley (Lippincott) is that rare combination of know-how from a chef and matre d'hotel interpreted clearly for home cooks by a veteran home economist. The book combines recipes especially suited to home preparation with advice from two Boston Ritz staff members on home entertaining in our servantless times.

For even more help in cooking fish and seafood, "The Blue Sea Cookbook" by Sarah D. Alberson (Hastings House) covers 74 varieties of U.S. food fish. A four-page chart shows suitable cooking methods for each. Other advantages include buying guides for fish and seafood, a chapter for brides on fish cookery for two and generally interesting, easy to prepare recipes.

Other recent cookbooks of merit include: "The Sea Cook" by Sallie Townsend and Virginia Ericson (Funk and Wagnalls), for galley cooks; "The Main Course Cookbook" by Edwin M. Post, Jr., mostly updated recipes from "The Emily Post Cookbook;" and "The Uncommon Cook Book" by Ruth M. Linkoff (Ward Ritchie Press), a highly personal recipe collection with directions for freezing many of the dishes.

Ahrens-Quick Wedding Told

Miss Laura Edna Ahrens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Ahrens, Ellenville, became the bride of Randall Wayne Quick October 14. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Quick of Wawarsing.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George Winn III, of the Ellenville Reformed Church. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride chose a gown of Chantilly lace and sequins with a detachable cathedral train. A seed pearl and crystal crown held her fingertip veil, and she carried a bouquet of carnations and daisies.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Mrs. Margaret E. Hart, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Miss Darlene Smith of Ellenville was bridesmaid.

Charles Quick of Kerhonkson was best man for his nephew. Mrs. Quick is a graduate of Ellenville Central High School and is employed by Ellenville Community Hospital.

Her husband is a senior at Ellenville Central High School and is employed by his father in his plumbing and heating business.

Ohio State, Kansas Gain in Top Ten Poll

United Press International and The Associated Press

Southern California and Ohio State had close calls Saturday but the Trojans suffered most in The Associated Press weekly college football poll.

They didn't lose their No. 1 national ranking but their number of first-place votes dropped from 24 to 19 and their lead over the second-ranked Buckeyes shrank from 64 points to a mere 13.

Southern California needed a touchdown pass with 1:13 remaining to squeeze past stubborn Oregon 20-13. The Trojans piled up 816 points in the balloting by 45 sports writers and broadcasters.

Ohio State tallied 14 first-place votes and 803 points after holding off Michigan State, No. 17 in this week's poll, 25-20.

Kansas retained third place with 10 first-place votes and 758 points. The other first-place ballots went to fourth-ranked Penn State with 588 points and No. 5 Tennessee with 541. There was no change in the top six teams as Purdue polled 415 points.

In Saturday's games, Kansas beat Colorado 27-14, Penn State edged Army 28-24, Tennessee walloped UCLA 42-18 and Purdue thrashed Illinois 35-17.

Georgia, seventh a week ago, dropped to ninth after tying 13th-ranked Houston 10-10 and California fell from eighth to 11th following a 7-7 deadlock with Washington.

Michigan moved up from ninth to seventh via a 35-0 rout of Northwestern, and Missouri climbed from 10th to eighth after belting Oklahoma State 42-7. Texas took over the 10th spot following a 38-7 drubbing of Southern Methodist.

California barely led the Second Ten by nine points over Notre Dame, which clobbered Navy 45-14.

After Houston in 13th place came Arkansas, 25-22 winner over Texas A&M; Oregon State, which whipped Stanford 29-7; unbeaten Ohio University, 34-27 winner over Western Michigan; Michigan State; Auburn, which upset Florida 24-13; Wyoming, which romped past Colorado State U. 46-14, and Louisiana State.

The Tigers managed to stay in the Top Twenty despite a 27-24 loss to Mississippi.

The oddsmakers believe top-ranked Southern California will have a close call Saturday against California while second-rated Ohio State should have an easy time with winless Wisconsin.

USC, unbeaten in six starts and fighting for a return trip to the Rose Bowl, is favored by seven over a California team with five wins, a loss and a tie.

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, Kansas is a seven-point choice over Oklahoma, Penn State is a 6 1-2-point pick over Miami, Tennessee is given a three-point edge over Auburn and Georgia is a 7

1-2 choice over Florida.

In Big 10 battles Purdue is rated a 13 1-2-point choice over Minnesota while Michigan is favored by 21 over Illinois.

In other games Missouri, a Big Eight title hopeful, is a solid 22-point choice over Iowa State, Arkansas is picked by 18 over Rice, Michigan State is picked 6 1-2 over Indiana.

The oddsmakers have also tabbed Yale a 14-point choice over Pennsylvania, Army by 14 over Boston College, North Carolina State 7 1-2 over Duke, Georgia Tech 12 1-2 over Navy, Alabama by 6 1-2 over Louisiana State, Texas by 19 over Baylor, and Oregon State over UCLA by 12.

Challenges for AFL Scoring Lead Turner Closes the Gap

By GARY KALE
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joe Namath tugs on a wispy beard and exclaims: "Let George do it!"

George Sauer shakes his bruised noggin and murmurs: "Jim's doing okay by himself." Namath, the New York Jets' much-publicized quarterback, has been shut out in aerial scores during the last five games. Sauer, knocked unconscious briefly during last Sunday's game with Buffalo, hasn't caught a touchdown pass since nabbing two from Namath in a loss to the Bills five weeks ago.

Both looked toward Jim Turner nonchalantly examining his "golden toe" which may have put money in each Jet's bank account. Turner, a five-year veteran from Utah State, entered the record books Sunday when he booted six field goals against the Bills and averted another upset by upstart Buffalo.

Ties Record

Turner's feat tied an American Football League record for field goals in a single game previously set by Gino Cappelletti. It also beat Buffalo 25-21 as the Jets offense collapsed and the defense forced many issues.

The New York kicking specialist said he was mostly concerned about the wet field as he was summoned with 3:26 remaining in the game and the Jets trailed 21-19.

"I felt the pressure building up," Turner admitted. "But I had other things going for me. The wind was right and I had the perfect placement holder."

Suddenly people remembered it was Babe Parilli who spotted the ball for Cappelletti that October day in 1964 against Denver when the Boston booter kicked six field goals.

Parilli, the 38-year-old backup quarterback for Namath, was the calmest individual on the field as he set down the ball perfectly for Turner each time. Turner tried eight field goals during the game, a league record. The first was wide by an arm span and the second was blocked by 280-pound tackle Jim Dunaway.

Studies the Spots

Turner puts in as much motion on the sidelines as the Jets do on the field. When New York has the ball, Turner follows the action and studies the likely spots he may have to stand on if called. He figures the angles, wind direction and his timing. An inquisitive visitor receives a gentle rebuff and a reminder that "I'm studying the position for a field goal."

The Jets face another high hurdle Sunday in their quest for a first Eastern Division title. They take on the Houston Oilers at Shea Stadium and this match-up is always tough to predict.

Coach Weeb Ewbank doesn't dare project about the team's title chances until this game is in the bag. Right now he couldn't care less if Kansas City, Oakland, or San Diego wins the Western crown. "Please, let's get through this one first," Ewbank prays.

"Maybe the others will come a little easier."

Jim Turner also seeks some divine guidance. He asks that Joe Namath "Let George grab Garrett, K.C."

to ease his own burden of having to win games while standing on his toes.

Threatens Stenerud

Turner is also threatening to take over the circuit's individual scoring lead from Jan Stenerud of the Kansas City Chiefs.

AFL statistics released Tuesday show that the former Utah State quarterback and place-kicker has scored 83 points—only three fewer than Stenerud. The difference is one field goal—

Stenerud has kicked 21 and Turner 20 and both have kicked 23 extra points.

Warriors, Muskies Win

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—The San Francisco Warriors, behind 28-point scoring efforts by Rudy LaRusso and Nate Thurmond, pulled away in the fourth quarter for a 119-108 National Basketball Association win over Phoenix Monday night.

The Warriors, who never led by more than eight points until midway in the fourth quarter, outscored the Suns 7-2 during a two-minute span at mid-point in the fourth period to take a 106-93 lead with 4:50 remaining. They pulled away to a 20-point margin at 116-96 with 3:02 left before allowing Phoenix to narrow the final margin to 11 points.

Jeff Mullins added two points to the Warriors efforts, Al Attles had 13 and Bill Turner had 10.

Phoenix although never leading, trailed 25-24 at the end of the first period and was behind 56-50 at halftime. The Suns fought back to tie the score at 72-all with 3:28 left in the third quarter but trailed 83-76 at the end of that period.

Wallace Has Left Major Impression

By RANDOLPH PENDLETON
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Win or lose, George C. Wallace believes his third party campaign for president has made an indelible impression on the nation's politics.

Wallace planned to go by motorcade today to Clayton, his former home town, 60 miles southeast of here, to vote and later watch the election returns at the Garrett Coliseum with his running mate, retired Gen. Curtis LeMay.

"This movement has already won," he said in a brief airport news conference Monday. "We're going to win further."

Tractor-Trailers Hit on T-Way

Two tractor-trailers were involved in a head-on collision on the State Thruway about 10 miles south of Kingston at 4:30 p. m. Monday, after one of the drivers reportedly fell asleep as he drove south on the T-way.

A report of Trooper J. D. Devine listed the drivers of the vehicles as August Kelder, 46, of Palatine and Edward Keim, 29, of Keansburg, N. J.

Kelder was operating a tractor-trailer owned by the C. & E. Transportation Corp. of Saugerties, south on the Thruway when the southbound flat-bed tractor-trailer operated by Keim hit the rear of the second trailer.

Keim was taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance. He suffered lacerations of the forehead and a fractured rib. Trooper Devine cited him for reckless driving after it was learned that the New Jersey truck driver fell asleep at the wheel as he drove the vehicle.

Hurt in Crash
Thomas M. Ragusa, 23, of Staples Street was treated and released from Kingston Hospital Sunday night following a one-car traffic mishap on Route 9W at West Park.

Sheriff's Deputy Michael G. Iordano reported Ragusa suffered head injuries and was taken to the hospital by Doctors Ambulance. The deputy said Ragusa's car was proceeding north on Route 9W when it veered off the right side of the highway and hit two trees. The mishap was reported at 11 p. m.

Driver Sentenced
Kingston police summoned Raymond Marshall, 27, of dead-end, but they refused to appear in City Court to face charges of making a deal. He would not name the states, but said they were outside the South.

Richard M. Nixon's traveling press secretary, Ron Ziegler, said in Los Angeles that Wallace's charge of failure to produce registration and being an unlicensed operator.

Don't get carried away this holiday . . . carried away in an ambulance! Do your part in preventing accidents. Observe all traffic regulations . . . don't speed . . . and above all, be sure your car is mechanically safe. Drive carefully . . . live to enjoy many holidays!

Hubie Has 3 PC Lead In Last Harris Poll

By BOB MONROE

NEW YORK (AP) — The major public opinion polls were split as the nation began voting today. A last-minute Harris poll showed Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey leading for the first time, 43 to 40 per cent over Republican Richard M. Nixon.

The final Harris survey, released Monday afternoon, indicated a swing of 5 per cent to Humphrey in 24 hours. It was dismissed by John N. Mitchell, Nixon's national campaign manager, as a "gratuitous concoction."

The final Gallup poll which was published Monday morning showed Nixon ahead 42 to 40 per cent with 14 per cent for third party candidate George C. Wallace and 4 per cent undecided.

Both the Gallup and Harris polls have showed Humphrey gaining momentum in recent weeks. Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said the final Harris survey showed the vice president was "over the top now."

Since both of the major surveys firms allow for a 3 to 4 per cent margin of error, the most recent surveys suggested a very close race with the possibility of a near dead heat in the popular voting.

No published state-by-state electoral vote forecast has showed Humphrey ahead and some observers saw the possibility that the apparent Democratic surge might prevent any candidate from gaining the 270 electoral votes needed to win.

If that occurred, the election would be decided in the House of Representatives where each state delegation has one vote and a majority of 26 is required for election.

In dismissing the final Harris poll, Mitchell pointed out that the previous Harris figures, published Monday morning, had agreed with Gallup giving Nixon 42 per cent to 40 per cent for Humphrey.

The final Harris survey, conducted among 1,206 persons on Sunday, gave Humphrey 43 per cent, Nixon 40, Wallace 13 and 4 per cent undecided.

During a campaign appearance in Los Angeles, Nixon commented: "I don't consider Harris reliable" and said he based his prediction of winning by three to five million votes on the Gallup poll.

A third poll, conducted by telephone in 48 states by Sindlinger Co., a Norwood, Pa., marketing firm, had Humphrey ahead by slightly more than 1 per cent.

Costume Winners

Fifty-five members of the church and community attended an evening of fun, fellowship, and food during the annual Halloween party in the basement of the Olive-Shokan Baptist Church, West Shokan, Friday night.

Costume winners were Lisa Kelder, Albert and Kenneth Barringer, Mrs. David Barringer and Elizabeth Barringer and Cindy Ronk. Judges were Mrs. Isabella Kessler, Mrs. Charles Wood and Miss Jennie Kerr.

Refreshments were served and games played. The party was under the direction of the Hospitality, Camp and Recreation Committees of the church.

Clayton's national TV appearances have included the DuPont Show of the Week. His shows usually wind up as a 45-minute appearance by popular demand though listed as 30 minutes of hilarity.

Tickets are available through all American Legion posts in Ulster County and may also be obtained at the American Legion Memorial Building in Kingston.

HARRY CLAYTON

Comedian Set For the Legion Show November 9

Comedian Harry Clayton, TV and night club star, with billings from Quebec to Nassau and Miami will headline the entertainment portion of the American Legion 50th anniversary dance Nov. 9 at Gov. Clinton Hotel. Entertainment chairman Harry Maikensholder in announcing Clayton's appearance stated, "We are indeed fortunate in landing an artist of his caliber."

Clayton's national TV appearances have included the DuPont Show of the Week. His shows usually wind up as a 45-minute appearance by popular demand though listed as 30 minutes of hilarity.

Tickets are available through all American Legion posts in Ulster County and may also be obtained at the American Legion Memorial Building in Kingston.

Dear Abby

Girls Get Charged Up, Too

By Abigail Van Buren
[© 1968 by Chicago Tribune
N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: You'll never reach the younger generation with the type of answer you gave "GOOD AND LONELY." In urging her to keep turning down the boys who want to make out, and a prince will come along on his white horse and marry her because she stayed "good."

I suspect that this girl has not mastered the technique of dealing with boys who want all they can get from a girl.

In turning down a boy, you can embarrass him and make him feel small, and paint a picture of yourself as a prude, or you can let him know that you understand his problem—but that you are geared to a lower voltage than he; and there are so many things you enjoy about him that you'd rather not get sidetracked into a wrestling match. It's not the turn down that drives the boys away. It's how it's done.

DEAR CHARLIE: You had better up-date your information. The female of the species is NOT geared to a lower voltage than the male—and when both parties are charged up, it's HER problem as well as his. The best insurance a girl has against a major power failure is to short circuit the whole affair with a fast NO!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old male and a sophomore at college. I live at home and my problem is my mother. She worries! She is probably the dearest and kindest mother a guy could have, but she worries about me all the time.

I don't drink or smoke. I don't have a police record and I am a "B" student. I have never been a problem child and she has no reason to worry about me, but she worries anyway. If I'm out of her sight she calls all over town trying to locate me to see if I'm "all right." This gets embarrassing. Have you any advice?

DEAR WORRIED ABOUT: Telling a mother not to worry is like asking someone not to perspire. There is nothing you can do beyond minimizing your mother's worrying by reassuring her that you can look after yourself.

DEAR ABBY: We have a friend who feels about food like an alcoholic feels about drink. All she talks about is food. Every meal at their house is like Thanksgiving. She and her children are so enormous they look as if they belong in a circus.

We know it's none of our business if this woman wants to do that to herself, but it is a crime to see what she is doing to her children. She has a son (my son's age) who would be so handsome if he would lose about 50 pounds. He can't even dress like the other boys. The poor kid sits in the house watching television while the other boys are out playing. The doctor puts him on diets, but he can't stay on them with his mother pushing food at him all the time. How can we help this poor boy? He'll soon be in high school and it would be a pity for him to be let to be out of everything because of his appearance. By the way, this woman thinks she is the world's best mother.

INTERESTED FRIENDS: If you are truly "friends," for goodness' sake tell this unfortunate misguided mother what an injustice she is doing her children. If you can't get thru to her, perhaps the boy can be influenced thru a counselor at school or even by his own contemporaries.

When you have a part score of either 60 or 90, all suits become equal. With 90 one of anything makes game, with 60 two of either a major or minor suit makes game. With this in mind the winning player will avoid opening three card club and diamond suits and even if he is a devout follower of the five card major suit prophets, he will open four card majors in preference to preparing for a rebid with a weaker minor suit opening.

He also will not rebid over his partner's two over one response unless he holds either a very good suit or is interested in a slam. With this in mind, responder won't go to the two-level in a suit unless he is prepared to play it right there.

One of these four card major openings paid unexpected dividends when South decided to fly the flag after his opponents had stopped at two diamonds.

West would have had no trouble making three or four diamonds. With 100 honors he would have collected almost 700 points. After South stuck in his three club bid, East and West collected nine tricks and 1,400 points. In addition they still had their part score.

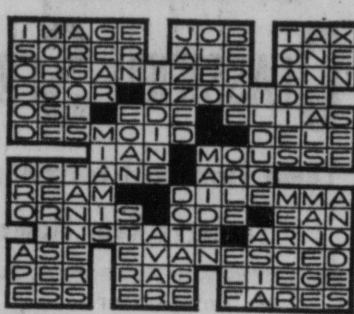

West opened a spade and East proceeded to cash three spade tricks and lead his low one. South discarded a diamond and West trumped. Then West cashed his ace of diamonds and shifted to the queen of trumps. South took his ace and king and when West showed out South had to lose two hearts and two more trumps.

We don't think much of South's three club bid. It is mighty dangerous to get into the bidding at the three level with a broken five card suit. He paid well for his bid but if East had opened one club there had been no chance that South would have gone into action and the best East and West could do would be to take the easy game and rubber.

Vote Almost Anti-Climatic

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—It is a television event for this year, curious thing, but in a way. The reason is that it has been today's presidential election preceded in 1968 by other is an almost anti-climatic momentous historical happenings, some of shocking emotional impact.

And these are more likely as video events, to implant themselves in our memory than an orderly, scheduled election—unless there is a tremendous upset at the polls.

Presidents, for example, are of course elected every four years, and we have seen that before on television. But how often does one see, on the home screen, the withdrawal of a president from an election race?—as we saw earlier this year when Lyndon Johnson withdrew.

More Memorable Events
 Naturally we will remember 1968 as an election year, but television more likely will retain longer the memories of two assassinations—of Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King—and the lengthy video coverage of each, including their funerals.

For television specifically, the death of these two national figures had a particular kind of impact, aside from the tragedy of the killings themselves. The murder of King brought the nation's racial conflict to a head on the home tube, and hastened the presentation of a party propagandist.

number of series this past summer dealing with white-black relationships.

The assassination of Kennedy, preceded as it was by the King killing, brought an uproar and an outcry against violence on television.

View Political Process
 This was emphasized again during the summer by the disgraceful, televised shambles of the violence and controversy at the Democratic convention in Chicago, another story perhaps more memorable than the election.

Although the three-party election competition was dramatic in its own way, much of the drama was denied televisioners because of the failure to suspend the equal time broadcasting arrangement.

As a result, voters who watched television were once again subjected to an endless series of one-sided, superficial political broadcasts by party propagandists.

No Big Viet Battles But the Toll Goes On

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.

SAIGON (UPI)—Allied forces killed 129 Communists in scattered fighting throughout South Vietnam, military spokesmen said today. The Viet Cong shelled a city near Saigon for the second time in three days and shot down a U.S. troop-carrying helicopter.

Military spokesmen said Monday's fighting included no major battles. But it raised to about 350 the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed in two more days of what military officials call a month-long lull in major combat.

Near the big Bien Hoa allied base 13 miles north of Saigon, guerrilla gunners Monday downed an Army CH47 Chinook helicopter carrying 13 Americans. One suffered injury when the craft crashed.

Before dawn today the Viet Cong lobbed three 120mm mortar shells into My Tho, the Mekong Delta provincial capital 35 miles south of Saigon, but no casualties were suffered. Sunday's shelling killed four Vietnamese and wounded 36 others in My Tho.

In Saigon, the South Vietnamese government continued its vow to boycott expanded Vietnam talks in Paris. Government spokesmen also scored reports from Paris the Communists would de-escalate their operations in this country.

They produced a document they said was captured a few days ago near Saigon. The government spokesmen said the document was an order from Hanoi for the Viet Cong to increase "military, political and enemy troop-action activities" following the American halt to bombing North Vietnam Friday.

Despite the reported lull in major action, American forces continued their campaign against guerrillas in the Saigon area.

U.S. Army air cavalrymen and helicopter gunships late Monday killed 17 guerrillas in a 45-minute attack near Can Giuoc, 20 miles south of the capital.

'November or Never' --- Warning on Mideast Peace

By WILBORN R. HAMPTON

United Press International The Egyptian War Ministry has started distributing weapons to President Gamal Abdel Nasser's newly-organized People's Militia as part of a national mobilization, the newspaper Al Ahran said today.

In the United Nations, the Security Council was warned it was "November or never" in finding a Middle East peace formula.

In Amman, the Jordanian Interior Ministry said most of a militant Arab commando group that attacked troops loyal to King Hussein had been arrested following a day of fighting in the Jordanian capital.

Al Ahran said the arms had been delivered to the Egyptian interior ministry which was handing them out to those who take part in training at 16 camps opened throughout the United Arab Republic.

The militia was established by Nasser 24 hours after Israeli commandos blew up two Nile River bridges and a power station last week at Nag Hammadi, 280 miles south of Cairo.

Italian Skies Clear Leaving Death and Ruin

VERCELLI, Italy (AP) — The skies cleared over northern Italy today after 84 hours of rain, and waters began receding in a triangle of death and ruin along the south slopes of the Alps.

Floods and landslides took at least 102 lives there and other persons were missing.

"The worst seems to be over," said an official of Vercelli province, in the hardest hit region between Milan and Turin. "The water is receding and colder weather in the Alps has checked the runoff."

But as the northern tributaries emptied floodwaters into the Po, Italy's greatest river, officials went on the alert for new dangers in that river's basin. Low-lying areas were ordered evacuated as a precautionary measure.

Emergency crews worked to reopen roads in the flood zone. Some villages still were isolated. The Milan-Turin main railway line was restored and so was the international rail line through the Simplon Pass between Italy and Switzerland.

Damage to the industrially rich province of Vercelli, which also is a major rice producer, was estimated at more than $16 million.

In Biella, at the foot of the Alps, some 80 of the city's 120 textile mills were wrecked, thousands were jobless and many were homeless also.

In Amman, Hussein told his nation by radio the fighting Monday was started by "criminals, traitors and bought individuals."

The Syrian-supported commandos protesting Hussein's curtailment of forays into Israel opened fire on Hussein's loyal troops.

Hussein charged that the commandos who attacked his own troops were "phonies" who

Black-Clad Hijacker:

'The First for New Africa'

By MATTHEW KENNY

MIAMI (UPI) — Passengers aboard a hijacked airliner said today the gunman who seized their flight warned that "black nationalists are going to hijack a plane every day for the next 100 days to show the white people they can't keep us down."

The flight, a National Airlines Houston-to-Miami jet diverted to Cuba Monday, was the "first for new Africa," according to the black-clad hijacker.

The gunman, a Negro about 25, tentatively was identified by the passenger list as "Mr. H. Jackson of Baton Rouge, La."

He was the only one of 58 passengers on the jetliner who remained in Havana.

"He was a kook," said M. R. Garrison, a Vernon, Tex., oilman, who was among 57 passengers returning to Miami aboard a special flight from Cuba chartered by the State Department.

Cuban officials allowed the seven-member crew to return the Boeing 727 jet to Miami Monday night, but the passengers were detained until a special flight brought them back later. The Cubans contend it is unsafe for a big jet, loaded with passengers, to take off from the Havana airport.

It was the 12th hijacking this year of an American plane, three of them from National Airlines.

The hijacker, wearing a navy blue blazer, entered the airliner's rest room 10 minutes after it left New Orleans. He emerged in a black leather jacket, black shirt buttoned to the neck and a black beret.

"He pointed a gun at my head and just said 'Havana,'" said Sandra O'Brien, a slender, blonde stewardess.

Capt. Antoine Hunter, 50, the pilot, said the hijacker, wielding a .38 caliber revolver, was admitted to the cabin and said "If we didn't do what he said, he was going to shoot one of the stewardesses. He was very nervous."

Q. Why did you have Smith Parish do your siding?

A. "Well, I've known them for forty years and I like the type of work they did. They were perfectly honest and always did what they agreed to do, right down to the last detail... I've got great confidence in them and I highly recommend them."
